Pacific Scientists In Vancouver Hear Voice From England

Delegates to Congress Addressed By Baron Rutherford, Whose Words Are Carried From Cambridge By Telephone-Radio Hook-up

Hon. H. H. Stevens Talks With Speaker

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 5.—More than a century and half ago the Royal Society of Great Britain demonstrated its interest in scientific research in the "great western ocean" by sending forth Capt. Cook on what resulted in one of the greatest voyages of exploration in the history of the world—a journey of months and years.

This morning the voice of Baron Rutherford, a great Empire scientist, came to the shores of the Pacific over those mysterious ether waves which science has put to the use of man, when he greeted delegates to the fifth Pacific Science Congress, opening the Vancouver sessions of their convention after the sessions of last week in Victoria.

From his Cambridge study Lord Rutherford spoke to scientists of all Pacific nations gathered in the crystal ballroom of the Hotel Vancouver, a towering building standing on ground which in the days when Cook and Vancouver sailed the Pacific was shaded by tall firs and cedars—primeval wilderness. He reminded them of Cook's voyage and spoke, as New Zealanders of his pride in the accomplishment.

Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the congress, and Hon. H. H. Stevens, federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, and chairman of the cabinet committee on scientific research, took prominent parts in the opening ceremonies in the form of formal conversations between Cambridge and Vancouver.

GREETINGS EXCHANGED
"Just a moment, please, London," the engineer in charge of the Vancouver end of the complicated trans-continental hook-up spoke as the clock struck ten. A moment later Dr. Tory was greeting Lord Rutherford for himself and many old friends in the audience.

Lord Rutherford's voice brought a hearty greeting to his scientific brethren, emphasizing the importance of strengthening the ties between men of different races and creeds. He offered his sympathy to a sister nation, the United States, for the loss of that metal-less ship the Carnegie, a craft that accomplished great things for science, before she met her doom in Samoa. He went on to speak of Captain Cook's voyage and of the (Turn to Page 2, Col. 7)

POLICE SEEK TWO OF GANG

Rounding Up Persons Connected With Abduction of Kansas City Young Woman

Associated Press
Kansas City, June 5.—Seeking to round up all the persons connected with the abduction of Miss Mary McElroy, twenty-five-year-old daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy, Kansas City police today pressed a search for George McGee, an unemployed Leavenworth, Kas., plumber, and Clarence Stevens.

Along with six other persons, all in custody, the two were indicted Saturday by a federal grand jury which was called to hear evidence relating to the abduction of Miss McElroy and the payment of $30,000 for her release. Detectives said McGee and Stevens had been named as participants in confessions made by Walter H. McGee, brother of one of the missing men, and Clarence L. Click.

Click, officers said, confessed after he had read a detailed statement by McGee and then led officers to a creek bank south of Leavenworth, Kas., where a jar containing $3,190 was unearthed.

The other four indicted are Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gilbert of Paris, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. Windell Johnson, Oklahoma City, who were taken into custody at Amarillo, Texas, along with McGee, an ex-convict.

McGee's statement, police explained, absolved the Gilberts and Johnsons of any connection with the plot.

Finding of the money which Click said he had hidden near Leavenworth, his former home, brought to approximately $13,000 the amount of the ransom money recovered.

First action against those charged with the abduction will be taken under Missouri statutes, which have provisions for the death penalty in kidnapping for ransom.

MANY POLICE FOR NEUTRAL ZONE

Peiping, China, June 5.—Provincial authorities announced 25,000 Chinese police force will patrol the demilitarized zone in North China which was declared a neutral zone in the Chinese-Japanese truce signed recently at Tangku.

A dispatch from Tientsin said 600 Japanese troops had arrived there to reinforce the Tientsin garrison in place of soldiers sent to Peiping May 23 to guard the legation there.

Wilful Murder Verdict In Sue Min Jim Case

"Person Or Persons Unknown" Caused Death of Chinese, Jury States

Bloodstains in Upper Part of House Found By Inspector Vance

"Wilful murder by person or persons unknown" was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury this morning at the inquest over Sue Min Jim, Chinese cook at the home of H. M. McGivern, who met death in the basement of his employer's home on the night of May 23.

Presentation of the evidence required two hours and the jury returned with its verdict in about five minutes, more or less directed by Coroner E. C. Hart.

A new feature of the investigation into the brutal slaying brought out for the first time was the testimony by Inspector J. F. C. B. Vance, Vancouver, that human blood stains were found in the hallway of the McGivern house and also leading up to the second floor on May 31, seven days after the killing.

Mrs. Dorothy Martin, who cleans house twice a week, explained that these bloodstains might have come from a cut on her finger on May 30.

The first witness at the inquest was Sue Min Yoke, a brother of Sue Min Jim. He identified the body.

Dr. P. A. C. Coulson, who was called to the house when the body was found, and Dr. J. H. Moore, the autopsy, gave the medical evidence.

There were multiple head wounds, the skull was fractured and bones of the face smashed. One wound on the left side had cut through to the brain. Two weapons might have been used, Dr. Moore said. The cuts were clean as if done with a keen-edged instrument. There were several small superficial cuts on the shoulders.

Chief John Syme of Oak Bay next took the stand. He described where the body was found and how blood was spattered on the wall of the passage just inside the basement door, on the (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Co-ordinating Bill For U.S. Railways Is Passed

Washington, June 5.—The House of Representatives today passed the 1920 Transportation Act, which provides for the co-ordination of the railway systems of the United States.

Creating a federal co-ordination to effect economies and scale capital investments in the railway systems through a transportation act, which passed the House of Representatives today, the bill now goes back to the Senate for adjustment of differences between the two branches of Congress. It passed without a record vote.

The measure also places holding companies under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and repeals the capture clause of the 1920 Transportation Act, thus cancelling $361,000,000 in government claims against carriers for excess profits.

The bill protects labor by preventing the discharge by railroads of any employees through consolidations or eliminations of services or terminal facilities.

HOWE TAKES OVER MINES PORTFOLIO

The vacancy caused in the Tolmie cabinet by the resignation last week of Hon. William McKenzie as Minister of Mines was filled to-day with the appointment of Hon. S. L. Howe.

Mr. Howe will now discharge the duties of Provincial Secretary, Commissioner of Fisheries and Minister of Mines. Premier Tolmie has taken over the duties of Minister of Agriculture in addition to those of head of the government and Minister of Railways.

Hon. John Hinchliffe holds the dual portfolio of Minister of Education and Minister of Lands.

The cabinet now consists of seven members, but none of the outside groups which Premier Tolmie promised would be included have been taken in with the exception of Hon. W. Middleton Dennis, hailed as a representative of labor but whose claims in that direction have been scorned by some of the labor organizations.

CONVICT IS RECAPTURED

Girl Abducted By Escaped Kansas Bandit Helps Oklahoma Posse to Success

Associated Press
Chickasha, Okla., June 5.—The capture of an Oklahoma college co-ed was credited to-day with a large share in stopping the frenzied cross-state dash of Frank Sawyer, fleeing Kansas convict, near Binger, Caddo County, yesterday.

Sawyer, one of the eleven desperados who escaped from the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing last Tuesday, left a trail of abductions and stolen automobiles in his frantic attempt to escape the cordon of officers thrown out from northeastern Oklahoma.

Lewis Bechtel, recaptured near Dripping Springs, Okla., is the only other one of the Kansas fugitives who has been retaken.

Sawyer was recaptured in a gun battle and free-for-all fight after he had abducted Bob Goodfellow, Caddo County Clerk, and his twenty-year-old sister, Louise Goodfellow.

BREAD PRICE RISES TO-DAY

Victoria Bakers Increase Cost of Five-cent Loaf to Six Cents

Two Qualities of Bread Are Being Offered For Public Consumption

Rising cost of living was reflected here to-day by an upward trend in the price of bread. Commencing to-day, the popular sixteen-ounce loaf which has been retailed at five cents, now costs the consumer six cents.

This development was announced this morning by the Victoria Master Bakers' Association, of which D. W. Hunsbury Sr. is secretary.

It was stated that the decision to raise the price of the five-cent loaf one cent was unanimous among the members of the association. At least one independent baker is retailing five-cent loaves to-day, but the indications are that this firm will fall into line with the majority.

The increased cost of bread, it was stated by members of the association, is due to the rising cost of ingredients, which have advanced all along the line.

TWO QUALITIES
There are two qualities of bread on the market here, weighing sixteen ounces in each case. First quality bread retails at two for fifteen cents, while second quality retails at six cents a loaf.

Asked to define the difference in the two qualities, a member of the Master Bakers' Association explained that in the case of the first quality the food value of the bread was raised by the rich vitamin ingredients, while the second quality was just "plain John," or flour, salt and water.

The whole-baking industry has been reorganized here, it was explained. Efforts are now being made to get the Vancouver bakers to bring bread prices up to the Victoria level.

STUBBS MAY BE CANDIDATE

Ex-Judge of Winnipeg to Attend C.C.F. Convention in Mackenzie, Sask.

Has No Regrets Over Events Which Preceded His Retirement From Bench

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, June 5.—Lewis St. George Stubbs, former Winnipeg senior court judge, has accepted an invitation of the Western, Sask., Farmer-Labor group to attend the convention of the Canadian Co-operative Commonwealth Federation at Preeceville, Sask., on Thursday, at which a C.C.F. candidate will be chosen to contest the Federal by-election in Mackenzie constituency.

The by-election was made necessary by the resignation early in February of Milton M. Campbell, Progressive, to become a member of the Tariff Board of Canada. The date of the polling has not yet been set.

In a telegram to-day, Stubbs said he was assured of no regret and no apology, and that he was surprised and disappointed with the commissioner's report. Lewis St. G. Stubbs, on receipt of the order-in-council removing him from the Winnipeg county court bench, issued a statement to-day.

The dismissal followed a lengthy investigation into the charges against Justice Frank Ford of Alberta into complaints preferred by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General of Manitoba, against Judge Stubbs, some of whose statements were considered harmful to the administration of justice.

"POLITICAL MISSION"
"The only element of surprise or disappointment to me is the commissioner's report," the statement said. "The politicians have neither surprised nor disappointed me. Inasmuch as the commissioner is a judge, supposedly disinterested and impartial, I naturally expected judicial treatment and disposition of the matter before him. But, obviously, he has not performed his judicial function, but executed a political mission. The evidence and proof of that is his own report."

But the vast jury consisting of those who attended the hearings of the commissioner and who read the very full and fair press reports of the proceedings had formed its judgment and (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

SCORES POLICY ON IRRIGATION

Liberal Leader Takes Issue With Statement Issued By Premier Tolmie

Business Basis For Loans and Re-payment Necessary, Says Pattullo

Premier Tolmie's statement on the rebate of $1,500,000 to British Columbia irrigation districts does not present a proper view of the problem and outlines a policy which it will be impossible to carry out, F. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, says in a statement issued to-day.

The conservation fund created to help the districts cannot be closed out and more loans will be necessary to preserve the district, Mr. Pattullo says. These loans must be made on a business basis with repayment provided for, Mr. Pattullo adds.

The comments of the Liberal leader on the statement which the Premier issued following the cabinet dash on the subject and the resignation of Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, follows:

"Premier Tolmie's statement with reference to the irrigation problem does not properly represent the situation. It also misrepresents policy which it enables the cabinet to carry out."

"Briefly, the situation is this. During the boom days in agricultural lands a number of land and water companies started operations on a large scale in the Okanagan country. They agreed to deliver water at a low rate in order to sell the land at a high price. No provision was made for depreciation, upkeep, or operation of the water systems, with the result that in a few years the systems were breaking down and orchards now coming into bearing were at dire jeopardy. Some of the companies were in the hands of receivers, the banks would lend no further money, nor would anyone else. If the industry was to be saved, and such towns as Vernon and Kelowna were to survive, something had to be done."

CONSERVATION FUND
"Through my instrumentality the legislature created a conservation fund. From this fund moneys were advanced to enable the water companies to take over the water systems from the defunct companies. During my time some $2,250,000 in round figures was advanced by way of loan, not given as advanced by Premier Tolmie."

"During this period a constant agitation was kept up by the then opposition, and the ranchers were encouraged to take over the water systems. The result was that they did not pay, and the obligations piled up. We granted several moratoria, but I had no money to pay them. The money must be repaid, and no doubt this was a considerable factor in our losing some of these assets."

FOURTEEN ON TRAIN KILLED

Injured Total 116; Paris-Nantes Express Engineer Arrested After Derailment

Associated Press
Nantes, France, June 5.—Fourteen persons were killed and 116 were injured, many gravely, yesterday in the derailment of a Paris-Nantes express train laden with 300 excursionists on the way to Brittany for the Whitenside holiday.

The express was scheduled to take a switch to pass the spot where another derailed train was piled up. The engineer is reported to have failed to observe the signals. Then he saw his error and suddenly reversed the engine and applied the brakes. The train left the tracks.

The engineer later admitted he had run through four "slow" signals at high speed and also neglected to read cautionary orders. He was arrested.

RAILWAY FINANCE EVIDENCE GIVEN AT MORGAN INQUIRY

Big U.S. Loan For Chinese

Finance Corporation's $50,000,000 Will Buy U.S. Wheat and Cotton

Ottawa Officials Say World Market Will Not Be Much Influenced

Associated Press
Washington, June 5.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with the full approval of President Roosevelt, will loan China $50,000,000 to be used in buying United States wheat and cotton.

The loan, negotiated by Dr. T. V. Soong, Finance Minister in the Nationalist Government of China, comes as a climax to protracted negotiations started last year, when wheat growers of the United States northwest attempted to sell several millions of bushels of wheat to China, using Reconstruction Corporation money to finance the deal. The proposal fell through originally, because no agreement as to responsibility could be reached.

The money is to be made available to China as purchases are made in the United States market. At present prices, it is estimated by the corporation, this would take over 900,000 bushels of cotton and approximately 12,500,000 bushels of wheat out of the United States surplus.

Bankers Said To Oppose St. Lawrence Proposal

Senator Nye Declares Morgan Interests Working Against Ratification of Canada-U.S. Treaty

Associated Press
Washington, June 4.—Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican to-day assailed in the Senate what he termed "opposition of the Morgan interests" to ratification of the St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty with Canada.

"We in the Northwest," Nye said, "understand why Morgan is opposed to the treaty, because of his power interests, and the Niagara-Hudson Power Company, which fears public competition and is determined to block it."

Morgan, he said, controlled the leading trunk lines from New York City to Chicago, and his interests "were determined to block any competition that might prevent this monopoly in transportation" in that area. He appealed to members not to oppose the treaty on sectional grounds, as he said that would lead to other bitter fights.

Flier Who Left New York Alighted on Island Off Norwegian Coast While World Thought He Was Missing; Touched at Oslo

FOUGHT STORM OVER ATLANTIC

By Stanley F. Richardson
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

Moscow, June 5.—James Mattern, United States aviator bound round the world in a solo flight, landed in Moscow this afternoon, dog tired but feeling "fine."

He was exactly fifty-one hours and thirty-seven minutes out of New York City. That put him almost three hours ahead of the Post-Gatty round-the-world flight record he is trying to beat.

Post and Gatty remained in Moscow eleven hours and thirty minutes.

Mattern landed here at 3:37 p.m. Swooping down on the muddy field from a sky darkened by angry clouds. He declared he would remain in Moscow two hours and then press on toward Siberia.

For a time yesterday afternoon and evening, when no word came, it was feared Mattern was missing. GREETED BY RUSSIANS
After taxiing his ship to a standstill here, the Texan was picked up by half a dozen Soviet aviators and tossed into the air several times in an enthusiastic reception.

Greeting several other friends among the newspaper correspondents, he grinned as he declared: "It seems almost like being back home again."

Airport attaches immediately conveyed to him information on weather conditions and landing facilities east of Moscow. The weather conditions were not of the best, but Mattern declared he would go on. There was a strong head wind and clouds.

Representatives of the Civil Aviation Society and the Moscow airport had arranged a sumptuous dinner for him in the airport reception room. While the aviator ate, Soviet officials supplied him with the necessary information. Simultaneously his plane was being serviced for the 4,300-mile journey across Russia.

Russian air officials routed him via Kazan, Sverdlovsk, Omsk, Novosibirsk and Khabarovsk, vetoing the direct route via Irkutsk because of the absence of landing and fuel facilities in that area.

An airport doctor intervened to feel Mattern's pulse and, with his fingers still on the aviator's wrist, he said: "He is very tired and needs rest."

TAKES SHORT SLEEP
When this was translated to him, Mattern grinned and remarked: "I feel fine, but I would like to have about an hour's sleep."

U.S. JUDGE BARS BANKER'S WIFE

In N.Y. Mrs. C. E. Mitchell Called By Defence But Is Not Allowed to Testify

Associated Press
New York, June 5.—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank of New York, took the stand in his own defence to-day as his trial for income tax evasion after his wife had been barred as a witness by the court.

Mrs. Mitchell, to whom Mitchell is alleged to have made a fake stock sale so he could escape income tax payment in 1929, was called as the first defence witness as soon as court opened.

She was stopped by Federal Judge Henry M. Goddard before she could set herself in the witness chair. "Neither the government nor the defence can call the wife of a defendant," the judge ruled.

Mitchell himself then took the stand.

As soon as he had finished his meal he was provided with a shower and put to bed in a room at the airport so he might lose no time.

Mattern said he hoped to hop non-stop at least as far as Moscow (about 2,600 miles) after leaving Moscow.

STRUCK BAD WEATHER
Explaining his action in flying via Oslo, Mattern said he had encountered a low pressure area about 400 miles out over the Atlantic which forced his plane with ice and forced him finally to turn north. Although he had fuel for several hours more flying, he was so weary with battling the elements he decided to land in Norway.

After his three hours' rest there he proceeded to Moscow direct, coming across the Baltic Sea and passing over the Soviet frontier from Rostov. On this stage of his journey he was hampered somewhat by head winds, but made fairly good time.

WING DAMAGED
Mattern revealed he had slightly damaged a wing on landing on Jomfruland Island, but he was able to make repairs himself. Girls on the little island on which he alighted wrote their names on the plane's wing.

Apart from oranges he had had nothing to eat since leaving New York. He brought two bottles of tea along, but both of them were smashed. His plane suffered a rent a few long on the underside of the left wing during the flight Saturday night when, the aviator said, he thought he had lost a year.

"I thought I never would reach land again," Mattern said. "Once I ran into a thunderstorm and the ice forming on my machine forced me down from 6,000 feet almost into the sea."

The aviator was somewhat downhearted at losing ten hours by going out of his course. His charts were faulty, he said, and he was unable to navigate along the Norwegian coast map.

The grinning Texan, whom the world feared lost until he turned up on a small island seventy miles west of Oslo, Norway, left the Floyd Bennett airfield at New York at 4 a.m. last Saturday. He flew the 3,600 miles in just five minutes short of twenty-four hours, being the first man in history to make a non-stop hop alone from New York to Norway.

"Mattern, who had little to drink and nothing to eat, halted only long enough to replenish his gasoline tanks and flashed away to Moscow."

He reported good and storm on the way across the Atlantic. "When I reached the west coast of Norway, I thought it was Scotland," said Mattern, "but finding it was Norway I followed the south coast in the hope of making Oslo."

"Seeing what I thought was a sandy shore, I circled and made a landing on a story beach. I found myself on Jomfruland Island, inhabited by twenty persons."

The intrepid aviator snatched an hour's sleep while fuel tanks were filled and then hopped off for Oslo, where he landed an hour later. There his papers were examined and he took off for Moscow.

Jomfruland Island is one of a large number of small islands in the northernmost reaches of the Skagerrak.

WIFE WELCOMES NEWS
Walla Walla, Wash., June 5.—"My wife, Mrs. James Mattern, said that when told of her husband's landing on Jomfruland, Russia, on his solo flight around the world."

"I knew he would do it," she said as she pressed for details of the flight and landing.

She said she had retired as usual yesterday evening, confident her husband would come out "all right" and be staying here while her husband is on his globe-circling tour.

SISTER IN MONTREAL
Montreal, June 5.—Jimmie Mattern's proud but worried sister, Mrs. C. H. Muller, was delighted to-day when reporters brought her news of his safe landing in Norway on his round-the-world flight.

"I'd rather know the bad news at once than wait," she said, but it turned out to be good news and her worries for the moment were over although she remembered there was "still that awful Russian country to fly over."

Mrs. Muller has lived in Vancouver, Calgary and Dallas, Tex. Her husband, for the moment, was her worry as a native of Montreal and they have two small daughters. She likes flying herself, but would not trust herself in the air with any pilot other than Brother Jimmie.

All Mattern has in the world is stacked on the success of the flight, according to his sister. She is confident he will break the record.

REPORTS BASELESS
Vancouver, June 5.—While New York dispatches state Jimmy Mattern flew planes for a mining company out of Vancouver, aviation officials here state this is erroneous.

He has never been registered as flying in British Columbia, they say. W. Templeton, Vancouver airport manager, has no record of him ever having flown in the Vancouver district.

Major D. R. Maclearen of the Canadian Airways declared Mattern was not known in flying circles here.

COMOX SEEKS PLATEAU ROAD

Chamber of Commerce to Investigate Plea of Island Board

Suggested Work Be Done As Relief Undertaking

Possibility of extending the Forbidden Plateau road as part of the new Dominion Government relief schedule of public works, will be investigated by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, appointed at the luncheon meeting of the directors to-day. The committee consist of Harold Husband, R.H.R. Kerr and W. T. Strath.

The matter was brought to the chamber's attention by the Courtenay Comox Board of Trade in a resolution to be forwarded to federal authorities, advocating the addition of the road to the public work schedule. He testified at length last week.

EIGHT MILES TO BUILD
Mr. Husband explained that the road was now about six miles into the plateau, but there was still about eight or nine miles to be completed. He felt that if the government was to undertake the construction of any new roads after present roads had been maintained, the plateau road should be given primary consideration on Vancouver Island. It was necessary to have the present roads kept under repair before any new roads were built, he stated.

Mr. Strath said that there was great need for a road into the plateau. The spot would attract hundreds of visitors if they could get there by car, he continued, but under present conditions they were not willing to trek in.

It was decided that the committee should investigate the possibility of continuing the road if the government intends to perform any new work.

The intertidal airman snatched an hour's sleep while fuel tanks were filled and then hopped off for Oslo, where he landed an hour later. There his papers were examined and he took off for Moscow.

They had to pay more than the market for the shares, the Van Swearingens with associates personally holding the rest, themselves paying all that had to be paid above market price for the entire 70,000. This block did not mean control, so they went after more. The road was in difficult, but they believed they could put it on its feet.

"When we went into the management of it, we conferred with Morgan and Company as to those improvements we felt should be made, and through their aid financed a large purchase of new equipment. . . . We were correct in our belief, it is the one road that has earned and paid its full dividend throughout the period of this depression."

"We were on our way," observed Van Swearingen at this point, going on to tell how they they eyed the Erie Railroad. They bought into the Erie Marquette. It was in 1925, and the brothers went to the Interstate Commerce commission with their first plan for the Nickel Plate unification. The plan was rejected.

Lamont, young partner in the banking firm, had sold stock to his wife which he later re-bought in connection with his income tax return for 1930, but that the committee counsel did not claim it was illegal.

SOME PAID SALARIES
Before the resumption of the inquiry to-day it was known some members of the firm of J. P. Morgan and company are paid straight salaries of $100,000 a year. A disclosure, made over the week-end by members of the committee said that the deleted part of the Morgan partnership agreement, which was withheld from publication, showed that in addition to having a small interest in the profits of the great banking house, some of the younger members also received salaries.

Railway Finance Evidence Given At Morgan Inquiry

three chatted until the committee resumed the public hearing.

O. P. Van Swearingen took the stand and sketched tersely for the investigators the creation of the great railroad empire which he and his brother, M. J. put together, and gave a glimpse of J. P. Morgan and Company's role in the road-building rise.

SOUGHT ADVICE
To the Morgan house went the Van Swearingens for financing and advice time and again. They regarded the banking firm, he said, "as does the world, wise counsellors in matters of finance. Once they accepted a Morgan caution, and postponed acquisition of high interests in the Chesapeake and Ohio, now their most prosperous and successful road."

This story was unfolded in a prepared statement laid before the banking committee as it called on Van Swearingen to uncover facts in the latter's financing of the Allegheny Corporation, greatest of Van Swearingen's road holding companies.

The story the railroad man told began with the Van Swearingens' acquisition of the Nickel Plate.

YEAR LATER
Having bought the road, the brothers decided there should be four eastern rail systems and started to consolidate one. In 1922 they purchased stock control of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western and the Lake Erie and Western consolidating them with the Nickel Plate. Along came the chance to acquire a major interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio. The Morgan "felt it wasn't time for us to make the expenditures. We took their advice."

But "a year or so" later the Van Swearingens were back at 23 Wall Street.

"The time the Morgan firm agreed with us and we closed the deal, the Nickel Plate buying 70,000 of the Huntington shares, the total of which was 73,000."

They had to pay more than the market for the shares, the Van Swearingens with associates personally holding the rest, themselves paying all that had to be paid above market price for the entire 70,000. This block did not mean control, so they went after more. The road was in difficult, but they believed they could put it on its feet.

"When we went into the management of it, we conferred with Morgan and Company as to those improvements we felt should be made, and through their aid financed a large purchase of new equipment. . . . We were correct in our belief, it is the one road that has earned and paid its full dividend throughout the period of this depression."

"We were on our way," observed Van Swearingen at this point, going on to tell how they they eyed the Erie Railroad. They bought into the Erie Marquette. It was in 1925, and the brothers went to the Interstate Commerce commission with their first plan for the Nickel Plate unification. The plan was rejected.

Here appeared the first of the holding companies.

STOCK SWING
Washington, June 5.—Members of the United States Senate committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company said they were told in executive session 30-day by Ferdinand Pecora that Thomas E. Lamont, young partner in the banking firm, had sold stock to his wife which he later re-bought in connection with his income tax return for 1930, but that the committee counsel did not claim it was illegal.

STEVENS SEES IMPROVEMENT

Minister of Trade, Visiting Vancouver, Speaks of Business Conditions

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 5.—There is a definite trend toward improvement in general conditions, according to Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who arrived here to-day to represent the Dominion Government at the opening of the Vancouver sessions of the Pacific Science Congress.

"Too much attention is being paid in Canada to the New York Stock Exchange in judging the state of business," said Mr. Stevens. "The thing to gauge this by is commodity prices and in this connection things look promising."

While deprecating the attention the New York Stock Exchange is receiving, which he said was reminiscent of the hectic days of 1929, Mr. Stevens said he did not wish to cast any reflection on the worth of British Columbia gold properties. These were important, he said, and everyone was looking hopefully to a few successful developments on a larger scale.

TO VISIT VICTORIA
The minister said he would go to Victoria Saturday to meet the executive of the British Columbia Conservative Association, when political conditions at Victoria will be discussed.

"I am not saying anything about that situation," he remarked in an emphatic tone.

The letter of the law has been invoked "I am not officially a judge. . . . In the process of killing me, they have murdered the living spirit of the British judicial system."

NO BARTER
Mr. Stubbs asserted the opportunity rendered to him to resign with a pension instead of being dismissed without it. "But I could not do that. Not for all the gold in Canada would I become a cheap and venal huckster and barterer of my rights, my honor and my self-respect."

"So far as I am concerned, the freedom of thought, freedom of speech and freedom of assembly. . . . In so far as I am concerned, the battle for freedom is not done and the fight is not quit. I shall fight on with all the energy and strength I can muster and all the ability and courage I can collect. I lose my judicial office in the process of the fight, but I do so with a clear conscience and clean hands, and with a stout heart and smiling countenance."

SCORE POLICY ON IRRIGATION

TRACE DEATH AT RED DEER

Boys'hood Shooting Incident of Man Charged in California With Wife Murder

Associated Press and Canadian Press
San Jose, Cal., June 5.—While Sheriff William J. Emig sought information from Canadian authorities at Red Deer, Alta., regarding advice David Lamson shot and killed a companion during his boyhood there, his mother to-day declared the shooting was accidental and said her son, now held here on a charge of murdering his wife, had been absolved of blame.

The sheriff said he had sought full information from Canadian authorities concerning the incident, which Lamson's mother said occurred on a homestead about sixty miles from Red Deer. Lamson, sales manager of the Stanford University Press, was hawk hunting with a neighborhood chum.

"Authorities who investigated the shooting were asked if it was accidental," she said. "David was not charged with anything. He was completely exonerated. If the authorities will communicate with officials at Rocky Mountain House in Alberta, they will find what I say is true."

TALKS WITH BROTHER-IN-LAW
Frank Thorpe Jr. of Lamar, Mo., brother of Allen Thorpe Lamson, attorney, who was the university employee, and for whose death he is charged, conferred for half an hour in the county jail with Lamson. "I have nothing to say," was his comment as he departed.

Ed. Rea, senior member of a San Jose law firm, joined former Congressman Arthur M. Free as defence counsel for Lamson. The case will move a step nearer trial to-morrow with Lamson's scheduled arraignment.

ALBERTA REPORT
Edmonton, June 5.—David Lamson, held in San Jose on a charge of slaying his wife, was arrested here to-day in connection with the death of "Dick" Sharpe, schoolboy companion, in the Rocky Mountain area in 1914.

Sharpe and Lamson, then about sixteen years of age, were shooting crows in the Prairie Grange School district on a Sunday afternoon when Sharpe was killed. An investigation was held, the finding being that Sharpe had stepped in front of a shotgun in the hands of Lamson.

Young Lamson left his home three miles south of Rocky Mountain House soon after the accident. With his mother and sister, he was a resident in California for several years. His father, David, died in 1928, on the Rocky Mountain House farm.

SEARCH FOR WEAPON
He described the search for the weapon, in the house, on the grounds and in the woods nearby. An axe was found in the basement and two knives in the house, but showed no trace of having been used.

A small piece of knife blade, broken from a type of cheap knife, was found in the pool of blood beside the body. The chief said he had questioned the members of the household regarding noises on the night of May 23, but they had heard none. Two dogs which slept upstairs had not barked.

The chief said experiments had been made with noises at the place where the body was found and could be heard upstairs.

HIS DRIVER'S STORY
An intimation that Sue may have had a premonition was given by Ralph Anstiel, bus driver, who testified that when the Chinese alighted from his bus at the terminus at 11:40 o'clock he was not his usual cheery self.

"This struck me as unusual and I asked Carey, Marie's counsel, who watched the proceedings."

"Yes, we often chatted and he was usually cheerful," replied the witness. Mrs. Alice Watson, the family nurse, testified she had asked Sue on the morning of May 23. She heard a friend of the McGiverins leave, and afterwards heard Mr. and Mrs. McGiverin go up stairs to bed.

SENT BOX TO SEARCH
Awaking at 7:30 o'clock she went down stairs and thought it strange that Sue was not cooking breakfast. Sue sent six-year-old Michael McGiverin into the basement to find him, but the boy came back and reported that Sue's bed had not been used that night.

The nurse went ahead with cooking the breakfast, thinking Sue would tell her about the box. She eventually phoned to explain his absence. Eventually about 10:15 o'clock she was cleaning up the nursery and took the ashes from the fireplace to the basement and found the body. Michael was with her at that time.

Rushing upstairs she told Mrs. McGiverin about it and then Mr. McGiverin telephoned the police.

She said that last October, Sue once asked her if she was afraid to stay in the house alone, and when she replied in the negative, he said he had been afraid of "a big pop and all gone."

IN NO TROUBLE
Detective G. J. Haywood, R.C.M.P., testified regarding police investigation in Chinatown, stating Sue did not appear to have been in any trouble, and had pursued her usual habits, going home on the night of May 23.

Inspector Vance was the next witness. He was called into the case on May 27 and had inspected the house that day and on May 31, he said.

Dealing first of all with the place where the body was found, he said it had first been against the door, but a blood smear, but had been moved slightly to the position where discovered, the feet showing signs of having been scraped along the cement. The body was in an unnatural position.

There were bloodstains leading to the coal bin which showed signs of a hand being near there with blood on it. There was evidence of blood in the laundry room nearby, as well.

FUZZLE OF HAT
Sue's hat appeared to have been put on him after he was dead, the inspector said, since there were smears of blood and pieces of skull bone inside it, but only one cut through it.

He had traced the blood down the passageway to the coal bin, thence to the stairs leading to the main floor. There was a smear near the light switch at this point, and a blood stain on the front door and another six feet from the door.

On the stairs leading to the second floor there was one spot on the second step and two spots on the eleventh step, and a smear on the post at the top.

NO BLOOD OUTSIDE
There was no evidence of blood outside the house, the inspector said, but it had rained heavily after the killing. The screen in the Chinese boy's room had no bearing on the case, the inspector said. There was no signs of anyone entering or leaving through the window.

He was questioned by Mr. Martin as to the freshness and kind of blood he had found, and replied that it was human blood, recently dropped.

H. M. McGiverin next took the stand, other members of the household being

With his wife and Mr. Craig, witness at chatting in the front room, he said, and they argued whether to play bridge or go to a movie, finally doing neither. About 10 o'clock Mr. Craig went home, taking Mr. McGiverin's car. He and his wife went to bed and after reading for a short time went to sleep outside the window.

With regard to the dogs in the house, he said they never barked when Sue came into the house, but he thought they would have barked if anyone went upstairs. One is a spaniel and the other a fox terrier pup.

Mr. McGiverin then described the events following the discovery of the body.

Mrs. McGiverin gave similar testimony and added that when the nurse told her about finding Sue she herself, then calling her husband, went upstairs. One is a spaniel and the other a fox terrier pup.

CHURCH SERVICE IS INTERRUPTED

Man Smashes Statue in Edifice in Ottawa and Is Arrested

Ottawa, June 5.—Robert Wishart, sixty-one, of Ottawa, who recently attracted wide attention by rising in a gallery of the House of Commons and calling on the members to repent caused excitement in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church here during mass yesterday when he brandished an iron pipe and smashed a life-sized statue of St. Joseph beside the altar.

About 1,000, half of them children, were in the church, and the children, believing it was a gun, at first became frightened and panic followed. One child fainted and had to be carried out. Wishart was seized by a church official and turned over to police, who locked him up on a tentative charge of damaging property.

Wishart, police said, declared "God commanded me to do it." He had been arrested numerous times for disturbing the peace in St. Joseph's Church, but never before had he entered the edifice. His previous convictions were noisy preaching on the street outside the church, to the annoyance of the worshippers within. He is a familiar figure in Ottawa as a street preacher.

NEW LEAD AND ZINC SOURCES

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 5.—Recent developments in lead and zinc in the Pacific Coast countries of South America have demonstrated widespread occurrence of deposits with workable quantities of the base metals. Prof. J. T. Singewald of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, told the Pacific Science Congress here today.

Whenever market and other conditions are sufficiently favorable and if the need should arise, Peru and Bolivia could be relied on to produce lead and zinc in large quantities, according to the speaker.

Before departing for Berlin he had several talks with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. The picture shows Dr. Schacht, left, as he was greeted by Mr. Norman at Waterloo station.

JOCKEYING BY NATIONS SEEN

Such Tactics May Stalemate London Conference, Say U.S. Delegates

By F. G. Vosburgh, Associated Press Staff Writer
St. President Roosevelt at Sea, June 5.—The biggest danger facing the World Economic Conference is described in United States delegation quarters aboard this ship as the risk of a stalemate as a result of jockeying for position. It was explained all the topics on the agenda of the conference are inter-related, thus presenting a real danger since it is difficult to get an agreement on one until the others are settled.

To avoid inconclusive maneuvering, the United States delegation, led by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, hopes a definite line of prompt action will be carried through. Some progress in the direction was made in the Washington conversations, the United States representatives believe. They feel much depends on British co-operation.

As an example of the difficulty involved in the fact the subjects are inter-related, an official cited the war debts.

Although debts are not formally on the agenda of the conference, the British Government contends a solution of this problem is a prerequisite to economic recovery. The United States Government, however, takes the position debts form only part of the problem.

The "lifeline" was carried out into the water and washed up on the opposite shore, where the ants, with commendable persistency, started building another home, while the frustrated spider angrily watched proceedings from the opposite shore.

SEEK WHEAT UNANIMITY

Four-nation London Conference Has Support of Prairies

By A. D. Stefferud, Associated Press Cable Editor
New York, June 5.—From a jumble of divergent facts and prejudices, Canadian and other delegates to the four-nation wheat conference now meeting in London want to draw a single design for controlling wheat production.

When they again take up the plans for helping ailing agriculture which they started in Geneva and temporarily laid aside last week, they will plunge deeper into problems tinged with nationalism.

The representative of Canada, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner to Great Britain, and the United States, Argentine and Australian delegates have indicated a desire to come to an agreement on the acreage restrictions so wheat prices will be increased.

Governments of the three prairie provinces of Canada have pledged their support to the principle of curtailing wheat production or controlling exports for the purpose of stabilizing prices. Behind any plan the representatives in London may reach, however, are problems of other farmers that scarcely can be ignored.

Aside from the importance attaching to their deliberations from the part to their deliberations on the acreage restrictions in agriculture—to some farmers wheat and agriculture are synonymous—is the probability their course may have a bearing on the larger World Economic Conference beginning in London June 12.

The goal of the wheat conference higher prices is an objective of the later conference. Canada and many other nations already have put into gear more or less elaborate machinery to achieve this end.

NEW U.S. TAXES FORESHADOWED

Roosevelt Warns of Consequences If Veterans' Allowances Paid

Canadian Press
Washington, June 5.—President Roosevelt told house Democratic leaders assembled at the White House at the week-end that if increased veterans' allowances are enacted, Congress must raise additional taxes to balance the budget.

Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, was reported by those present to have taken a strong stand against the increases in veterans' expenditures enacted by the Senate in the independent officers' appropriations bill, being quoted as saying that, if the bill should be enacted by the House, a total of $170,676,607 would have to be raised in other ways.

The House Democratic leaders, however, were reported to have informed the President the House was overwhelmingly in favor of the "additional allowances for the veterans above the administration economy programme."

Mr. Roosevelt was said then to have asked the party leaders to consider what kind of new taxes they would impose to meet the veterans' costs and to have added that he was prepared to stay here all summer if necessary to see this was done and the budget again balanced.

GUARD AGAINST DISORDER IN SPAIN

By Rex Smith

Associated Press Staff Correspondent
Madrid, June 5.—Authorities throughout Spain are taking precautions against possible disorders resulting from the signing of the new religious laws and the consequent effect by the Roman Catholic Church. Little reaction has been noted as yet.

Because the government contains few Catholics little direct effect from the communication is looked for. Some deputies said the church's action "does little good, for it prohibits us from going places where we never go anyway."

President Alcala Zamora, who is a Roman Catholic, refused to comment. It was said he apparently knew what the results would be when, on Friday last, he signed the congregations decree, which made civil societies out of religious orders with 38,000 members and turned church art treasures, worth millions, over to the state.

How to put yourself ahead 10 YEARS FINANCIALLY

TODAY many young men stand at the cross roads of their financial careers. The path they decide to follow now will mark the difference between success and failure—financially.

Some men will set aside a proportion of current income as a savings fund to supplement and eventually replace personal earnings—realizing that they owe this to their dependents and themselves. These men set their savings plan on a yearly basis. They comfort themselves by saying they will increase these savings when income increases—when demands for a constantly expanding standard of living are less pressing.

The wiser man—the man on the pathway to success will take a short cut. He will step ahead 10 years in one move by buying himself a substantial estate, or savings fund, immediately, with a GREAT-WEST LIFE "Double Protection" Policy.

This plan gives him at once a larger fund for the protection of his family than he could reasonably expect to save in 10 years' time. It enables him to buy twice as much insurance for almost the same cost as ordinary life insurance during his period of largest earnings, when his children are young and the need for maximum protection is greatest. For example, a man at age 35 can buy $10,000 "Double Protection" for only 37c a day.

Let us explain how this exceptionally attractive plan can be fitted to your needs and present earning power. Complete information will be mailed on request.

VANCOUVER TACKLES ANOTHER SERIOUS CRIME WAVE

Vancouver's reorganized police force has swung into action against another serious crime wave. The civic parks board having taken upon itself the grave duty of censoring costumes on Vancouver's beaches, mounted constables are parading solemnly up and down the sand, looking very wise and trying to imagine privately, no doubt, what the parks board means by a "modest" bathing suit. That is the vague term adopted by the parks board in its new by-law and the unhappy police are left to interpret it as they see fit. They will have the sympathy of the civilized world in their pursuit of this new type of criminal.

Just what particular qualifications a mounted policeman has for deciding the limits of modesty, we do not know. But we can just imagine what Vancouver would say if Victoria asked its police to undertake any such perilous venture. We can visualize certain editorials in The Province, and the short, pungent ones in The Sun, about the quaint habits of their Island neighbors. We can almost see the smile on Vancouver's face as it reads about the latest news from Victoria. But we will not be mean enough to say anything of the kind about Vancouver. We will not suggest that the celebrated Mrs. Nell Glover visit Vancouver and record for the British public this latest manifestation of a curious Canadianism. We wonder, though, whether she would say that the people of Vancouver were "little Neroes fiddling while Rome burns," and how Vancouver would like that.

Still, in this matter of modesty Vancouver has made progress. Only twenty-one years ago the Vancouver council passed a by-law ordering that "no person shall bathe or swim in the waters of Burrard Inlet, False Creek or English Bay, within the city limits, without a proper bathing dress, covering the body from the neck to the knees." Those were the days when people bathed, rather than swam and before the healthful virtues of sunshine, vitamins and all that kind of thing were fully appreciated. Lately, Vancouver, being a big, modern city, has altered its by-law to demand only "modest" dress—and left it to the police to discover what that means. After he sees the costumes accepted without question on the streets, in the movies, in the most fashionable gatherings of society, the Vancouver policeman, parading up and down the beaches, is going to look a lot wiser than he feels. Before the summer is over, we think he will be in agreement with Gilbert and Sullivan, whose verdict on a policeman's life clearly contemplated the problem of Vancouver's modest beaches.

BETTER DAYS AHEAD FOR DISTINGUISHED FISHERMEN

The hardships of statecraft in these strenuous times are scarcely appreciated by the electors. The present political crisis in British Columbia, for example, has upset all the plans of our chief Conservative politicians. According to the Conservative papers, ministers of the Crown have canceled their traveling arrangements to be here for a council of war this week. Mr. Bruhn, it is stated, has had to call off a fishing trip long planned. Attorney-General Popley, one of the country's ablest anglers, has reeled in his line beside some rushing Cariboo stream and sorrowfully headed back for this centre of grief and uncertainty.

This is really too bad. Mr. Bruhn and Mr. Popley have worked hard, according to their lights. After a year like the last one, and after a session of the Legislature such as they passed through this spring, they both deserve a little fishing. The electors would not grudge them their few days off in surroundings much more pleasant than the cheerless offices of James Bay, and in a sport much more satisfying than the game of politics.

We regret indeed that the council of war should have been summoned at such an inopportune moment, and doubtless if the Premier had been a fisherman such a thing would not have occurred. But we feel sure that Mr. Bruhn and Mr. Popley will yet be rewarded for their labors. In the autumn, after the election, Mr. Bruhn and Mr. Popley, and many another tired public servant, will rest with rod and reel upon the bosom of some quiet British Columbia lake, and no unwelcome voice will summon them to councils of war, or to the strife of the executive chamber.

THE ECONOMIC SUPERSTITIONS OF CIVILIZED MEN

"Sir Norman Angell, who foresaw the current state of the world twenty years ago, though few would listen to him, continues to advise the human family, like a kindly physician, calmly, patiently, without ever saying, 'I told you so.' His latest book, 'From Chaos to Control,' seeks to discover what can be done about our economic and other troubles—which are no surprise to him. And Sir Norman comes to the conclusion that the world needs not to discover a way out of its difficulties, but a willingness to follow a way already discovered; not a new solution but a readiness to accept a solution already clear to anyone who thinks.

That, Sir Norman thinks, is the basic trouble. The economists and students have long ago agreed in all countries on the fundamental needs of humanity, but humanity, for the most part, will not act accordingly because it is not ready to think about such things. It is not trained to think about them either. It is not even willing to accept the views of men who are able to think about them. The west has accepted the advice of medical experts and acted on it through the instrument of government. But to the problems of economic disease the west brings a different viewpoint altogether, a viewpoint of prejudice, of ignorance and fear. Economically we are still as dismally superstitious as the blacks of the Congo.

Some of the childish superstitions which Sir Norman finds still prevailing in the civilized western countries are: That nations are "persons" capable of having "intentions" and of being "sincere" or "insincere"; that economic competition exists only where two regions are under different political systems, as, for example, Washington State and British Columbia, but does not exist when they are under the same system, as, for example, Washington and Oregon; that "you can not change human nature" which actually has been "changed enormously by conditions—as witness certain slight changes in the matter of cannibalism, human sacrifice, polygamy, the burning of heretics, the torture of witnesses, the duel and a thousand commonplaces of daily life;" that "war is a struggle for bread" whereas it is more likely to be an effort to stop the uploading of surplus goods in a certain market; that international debts can be paid off in "money."

In other words, "civilized man is not an economic man." Part of his life, like the care of his body, he governs by scientific principles. But his economic welfare, on which his whole civilization ultimately depends, he manages largely according to notions out-of-date when this century began. When he asks what prevents the ordinary man "from seeing the simplest, the most fundamental of economic and social truths," Sir Norman inevitably comes to our system of education. There, he thinks, is the only hope for the future—our education system must turn out citizens able to inhabit and competent to manage our complicated world.

MR. HOOVER LOSES HIS GREAT MONUMENT

The American people have decided to call their greatest engineering feat by its original name of Boulder Dam after all. This mighty wall of concrete across the Colorado River was to have borne the name of Hoover, after the former President, but the name of Hoover is at a discount these days. The American people do not want it on their dam.

Perhaps nothing shows more clearly the utter fall of Hoover than the incident of Boulder Dam. Democracy is cruel to its heroes—yesterday a President with a record majority, to-day a private citizen without even a dam for a monument. So dismal does the record of the Hoover administration appear to the American people, in comparison with the brilliant promise of Roosevelt, that they have coined a new slang expression down there, withering in its contempt. Of anything which went wrong they used to say it had "gone haywire." Now they say it has "gone Hoover." That is probably the authentic voice of democracy on the failure of Herbert Hoover.

Like all verdicts, it will be tempered by history when the true facts of the Hoover era are known. Mr. Hoover probably expects that history will vindicate him and show that his theories of government, so stubbornly maintained up to the last, were right. But at this distance it seems likely that history will say rather that he was a great engineer and executive, a man of extraordinary capacity and good intentions, utterly out of place in politics and cursed by continual ill luck.

For the moment Mr. Hoover's reputation rests lower than that of his predecessor, Mr. Coolidge, a man who had no great qualities but was fortunate enough to retire before the deluge. History will rectify such comparisons, put them all in their proper perspective. But it seems a little hard in the meantime that Mr. Hoover, the Engineer in Politics, should lose the monument of engineering skill for which he worked so devotedly for more than ten years.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party in Great Britain and President of the Council in the National Government, says, in effect, he will stake his political life on his party's stand with regard to India. These are courageous words; they represent a challenge to that kind of die-hard Toryism which would refuse any form of government not dictated from London. Our guess is that Mr. Baldwin will win the day.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LIGHTER-THAN-AIRCRAFT
 The New York Evening Post.

It will be difficult, we believe, to get Congress to vote another five or six millions for another Akron. But why should we assume that this must be a permanent policy? Why is it not possible for America to have a moratorium in airship building? Why don't we stop building for some years and watch the development of science (or, possibly, of warfare) in the interim? Perhaps we shall gain some new light on the conquest of the air under the rays of which we may resume our part in the struggle.

CHOICE OF GOODS
 Hilaire Belloc in The English Review.

The purchaser has lost the habit of, and desire for, choice. I say that this mental and spiritual disease is more important than the merely mechanical fact of cheap production. Such a statement will sound fantastic in the ears of those who are accustomed, as all modern men are, to implied materialism. Yet here, as in every other department, it is the mind that governs and not the material conditions. It is notorious that in certain districts, in certain trades covering great numbers of people, choice is still exercised, and has a great effect. For instance, I would quote the demand for Cheshire cheese among the Lancashire operatives. They know what they want and they insist upon it; they will not accept, as will men in the south, a substitute or an inferior article.

DRAMATIC ART ON HIGH PLANE

Regrettable That Victoria Did Not Contest Drama Finals, Says Col. H. C. Osborne

Next Year's Dominion Drama Festival Being Organized Along Same Lines

Col. H. C. Osborne, C.M.G., secretary-general of the Imperial War Graves' Commission of Canada, and honorary director of the Dominion Drama Festival, speaking in the latter capacity, said today that it was a matter of regret that the Victoria group was unable to present the play "Ebb Tide" in the Dominion final.

He said the committee was fully aware of the general excellence of the play and the manner in which it was presented in the provincial final at Vancouver, and intimated that the local group would have had a splendid chance of winning in the final at Ottawa.

A. M. D. Fairbairn, private secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and well-known playwright, is the author of "Ebb Tide," etc. Because of the excellence of their showing the Victoria group was invited to appear in the Dominion final but the trip east could not be financed. The Dominion Drama Festival, sponsored by the Earl of Beesborough, Governor-General of Canada, was held at Ottawa at the end of April with twenty-four groups appearing in the final.

The Masquers Club of Winnipeg was adjudicated first and the Vancouver Little Theatre group won the second award.

There were one hundred and twenty-five plays in English and twenty in the French language in the preliminary competitions.

CONSPICUOUS SUCCESS
 The festival was a conspicuous success and the geographical distribution of the awards was particularly happy. Said Col. Osborne in pointing out that Quebec, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver figured in the awards, Rupert Harvey, eminent British actor-producer, was the adjudicator.

"Active steps have been begun for next year's drama festival, which will be along the same lines as this year," said Col. Osborne.

The colonel mentioned the fine work of F. C. Wood, daughter of Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson, who acted the part of the serpent in the Garden of Eden scene, from George Bernard Shaw's "Back to Methuselah," the vehicle of the Vancouver Little Theatre group.

Speaking in high praise of the calibre of the dramatic talent in Victoria, the colonel said: "In Ottawa we witnessed with the greatest of interest the B.C. Dramatic Festival held in Victoria and we are aware of the admirable work done by the various groups."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SPRING MOOD
 Man is the slave of folly,
 Wining and dining on day,
 It were better to go
 Where the sea winds blow,
 Dealing with wave and spray!
 Wasting the sunset hours,
 Pent in some dingy room,
 Growing each year
 From cheer to cheer,
 Stranger to laughter and bloom!
 Man is the slave of folly,
 Grasping for golden gain,
 Back to the dawn of time,
 And his heart grows cold,
 And his life is a barren plain.
 Wiser were joyous peasants,
 Back to the dawn of time,
 Men who could laugh
 At the sunrise dawn,
 Settling their lives to rhyme.

THE PACIFIC MANDATED ISLANDS

To the Editor:—Your issue of May 30 contains an account of an address by Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald at the Empress Hotel, in which the speaker dealt with the Japanese as a Pacific (presumably not peaceful) factor. The speaker, in part, is quoted to have said: "A question arises in regard to what is known as mandated islands. Japan, as one of the Allies in the Great War, captured from Germany three groups of islands—the Carolines, Marshalls and Ladrones, etc."

On April 3 last, The Vancouver Province, an article entitled "Japan in the Carolines," by W.K.E. appeared in the editorial page. Concerning this matter of mandated islands, this writer has the following to say:

"On April 1, 1921, Japan was given the former German islands in the Pacific, principal of which are the extensive Caroline and Marshall groups. The award (as reward for services rendered to the Allies it was admitted to be, was made in the face of a strong Australian protest. The 'Dominion of the Southern Cross' objected not logically that Australian cruisers had taken the islands as well as the German port of New Guinea almost at the outbreak of hostilities and long before Japan ever thought of going into the war."

History of course can settle this. In view of what is known of the Japanese, W.K.E.'s statements appear the more likely, and the sole object of the Japanese in entering the war was, no doubt, to acquire more territory. Their insolence, evasiveness and perfidy have, in the past two years, been clearly shown. Those Canadians who are apathetic and those who are not, must put this into their minds. The back for his "smartness" should read the article concerning Japan mainly in the May 1 issue of Maclean's Magazine; or pay heed to what Thos. Reid, member for New Westminster, said in the House of Commons at Ottawa last month. F. W. TEAGUE, June 3, 1933, Victoria, B.C.

PREMIER MACDONALD AS DICTATOR

To the Editor:—In the name of our God-given empire, I publicly protest against the above. "The British home" is in Germany and Russia, being allowed to turn our constitutional monarchy into a Mussolini dictatorship. His anti-British antecedents disqualify him for conference leadership one who for seventy years has worked against England and Empire with malignancy and desperadoes; who condones Germany's rape of Belgium and France and her hire of Lenin to betray Russia, and brazenly avowed her "could take the Moscow Soviet under his wing and clothe it in the furs of apology (October, 1922); Premier Tolmie Defends Course

Irrigation Rebates Based on Ability of Districts to Pay, He Says

Explains Government Action Which Led to Resignation of Minister

There has been no discrimination in apportioning rebates amounting to nearly $1,500,000 on government loans made to irrigation districts Premier Tolmie stated during the week-end in defending the government action which led to the resignation of Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines.

The ability of the districts to pay had been taken into consideration, and the rebates had been made to stabilize the fruit industry and prevent reversions of acreage to the crown, the premier said.

Premier Tolmie issued the following statement:

"In 1920 and succeeding years the late government advanced money to irrigation districts in order to assist them to establish and maintain irrigation systems. It is now found that much of the land in many of these districts is absolutely incapable of producing sufficient crops to enable the owners of the land to repay the borrowed money, and in order to salvage some of the money loaned, Mr. Loughheed recommends the writing off of a portion of the debt, which it is manifest the government will never be able to collect.

"There is no giving away of money recommended. The money was given away or loaned in 1920 and the immediate following years. There will be no additional money borrowed, and the money was handed out years ago by the late administration and a large part of it is irretrievably lost. The recommendation is merely that the uncollectable capital charges be written off.

"In the adjustment of irrigation loans recommended by Mr. Loughheed, the capital charge against each district is based upon the ability of that district to pay, as that ability has been demonstrated by the amounts actually paid over a period of years. Consideration was given to the value of the crops raised, and what it cost to grow them over a period of years, in no case taking into consideration the growers' private investment in principal and interest.

LARGE SCALE REVERSIONS
"It has been apparent for a long time that some of the districts could never repay the full amount borrowed, and that until a final adjustment of the capital charges on the land was arrived at, there could be no security to the owner. Development as a consequence came to a standstill, and in some cases large areas of land reverted to the crown through the inability of the grower to pay the charges.

"In order to stabilize the fruit industry of the province, and to keep the fruit-growers on the land, Mr. Loughheed recommends that the government reduce the capital charges, rather than become possessed of further areas of forfeited land.

"Mr. Loughheed studied the conditions of each district, and set the amounts that he considered ought to be fixed as a capital charge according to the ability of each district to pay, as demonstrated by what they have done in the past. There was no discrimination, and as to the statement that the government is giving away some $1,465,000, this is not correct.

"Mr. Loughheed points out that, if the present charges are insisted upon, many of the settlers will be compelled to forfeit their holdings and still further loss will be suffered by the province, because the land forfeited will cease to pay taxes. If, however, the charges are reduced so that the settlers can be assured of a reasonable profit, not only will the provincial revenue from taxation on the land be maintained, but there is a good possibility of a great proportion of the original loans being recovered.

"Some of the irrigated districts secured funds from other sources than the conservation fund, either by the issue of irrigation bonds or from a parent municipality. It would be impossible for the government to grant any relief in connection with such loans, because under the terms of the act it can only make reductions on money borrowed from the conservation fund.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE
"Some districts have paid in full; others, with an extension of time, and if permitted temporarily to use the conservation levies for the purpose of reconstructing and repairing their systems, will undoubtedly be able to do so. To sum up, Mr. Loughheed's recommendation has four features:

1. To scale down all loans to the maximum that can be repaid, as calculated from the amount actually paid over a term of years.
2. To defer annual repayments for the time being in order to permit certain districts to get their financial structure on a sound basis, and their irrigation systems in good repair.
3. To close out the conservation fund and to make no further loans.
4. Each district to create a sinking fund, in order to liquidate its liabilities. This was never previously provided.

"The entire adjustment is a relief measure, and is worked out in accordance with the needs of the parties affected, and their known ability to pay. In no case has any reduction been made on money borrowed since 1920, because it was considered that the districts borrowing since that date were in a position to pay, and the loans were made on that distinct understanding."

Mrs. J. W. de B. Farris Appointed to Pan-Pacific Women's Group

LOVE LETTERS OF BRITISH NOTABLES ARE EXHIBITED

By Dale Harrison, Associated Press

New York, June 5.—Love letters of British and other immortal writers went into the show case to-day so the public might read the hearts of dead men. In an exhibition of manuscript epistles placed on display by the Rosenbach Company the passions of Lord Nelson, Benjamin Franklin, Nathan Hale and many others are laid bare.

LORD NELSON TO EMMA
Lord Nelson wrote to his "Dearest Emma" and stated he would "rejoice, my Emma, to have you in my arms, when I need not envy a king."

James Lowell, who wrote a "Life of Johnson" and lived a life of literary eminence, was represented with an epistle indited to "my dearest wife."

Thomas Jefferson is shown in one letter to have had ideas of his own on marriage. To his friend, William Plummer, he wrote: "You say you are determined to be married as soon as possible, and advise me to do the same. No thank you!"

Benjamin Franklin, sometimes called "the first civilized American," wrote to Madame Brillon:

"I had not the happiness, my dear friend, to see you on Wednesday evening, because my horses were at Paris with the young man, and I have neither feet nor wings. If I had wings, I think I should have flown to you, and I think I should sometimes scratch on the window of your bedchamber. It is very mischievous of Nature to deny us the advantages that she wastes so profusely on all the little good-for-nothing birds and flies."

TO OSCAR WILDE
One of the most torrid of the love letters on exhibition is that of Constance Lloyd to Oscar Wilde.

"My Darling Love—You take all of my strength away, I have no power to do anything but just love you when you are with me. Every moment you are with me I worship you more, my whole life is yours. Do you believe that I love you most passionately with all the strength of my heart and mind. And when I have you for my husband I will hold you fast with chains of love and devotion so that you shall never leave me, or love anyone as long as I can love and comfort."

To-day's showing represented what was described as "the finest collection of love letters ever shown." Students of such matters enthused. These were the stories, in original handwriting, of great passions... and tortured souls... and of a genius who loved so intensely he went mad... it was as though sepulchres were opened... and the lids lifted on secrets that were locked in the hearts of dead men.

Columbia W.A. To Visit Mayne Island

Columbia Diocesan Board will hold the June meeting as the guests of the Mayne Island parochial branch on Wednesday, June 14. Transportation has been arranged for members who will leave by bus at 9 a.m. from the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Depot, 629 Broughton Street, to Swartz Bay, to take the ferry boat to Mayne Island.

As this is a public excursion of which the board is taking advantage, members are asked to purchase their tickets some time during this week at the bus depot as the accommodation is limited, and it is advisable that those members who are not making a trip to Mayne Island should purchase their tickets in Victoria and not rely on the chance of getting them at Swartz Bay.

Out-of-town members can have their tickets purchased for them if they will apply to the diocesan treasurer, Mrs. G. R. Hartley, 837 Burrard Avenue, who will supply further information. Members are asked to mention when buying tickets that they are Women's Auxiliary members, but the excursion is open to the general public. The bus leaves punctually at 9 a.m. Wednesday, June 14.

WARN LIBERALS AGAINST C.C.F.

Senator Cairine Wilson Says Their Pictures "Alluring" But Accomplishment Unlikely

Ottawa, June 5.—Guest speakers at the closing luncheon of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association convention here Saturday uttered words of warning in respect to the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

"To-day the pictures painted by the C.C.F. are most alluring," said Senator Cairine Wilson, "but are the leaders themselves able to explain how they are to be accomplished? Did we not, in 1930, listen to even more glowing accounts of the Canada that was to be if the present Prime Minister were returned to power?"

The luncheon at which Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Federal Liberal leader, and Senator Wilson were the principal speakers constituted the closing act of the first convention of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Federal member for Quebec East, was to have attended and given an address, but found himself unable to come to Ottawa. Miss Odette Lapointe, his daughter, and president of the Women's Branch of the association, substituted for the Quebec leader.

She commented on the attitude of "some reactionaries" who sought to "relegate youth to the political nursery, so to speak. They claim it arrogant and disloyal of young people even to voice an opinion," she said.

Earlier in the day, the convention had passed a large number of resolutions. One favored public ownership of public utilities and of fuel and

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

BABY'S WEIGHT IMPORTANT IN FIGURING FORMULAS

To figure a correct formula for baby it is essential to know his weight. It is extremely helpful if mothers include the birth weight, too, as the rate of gain indicates so very accurately whether baby is doing well or not. My leaflets, "Sweet Milk Formulas," "Sour Milk Formulas," and "Evaporated Milk Formulas," are frequently offered. When mothers are wrestling with formulas, I would suggest that they send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for these leaflets rather than ask for a formula that will be suitable only for a short time.

DAY'S PROGRAMME

Mrs. J. E. O. wants the whole-day programme for a baby of eight months, weighing nineteen pounds. "She is supposed," she writes, "to get thirty-six ounces of whole milk daily and in addition orange juice, cereals, fruits, vegetables and an egg. She will not take that amount of milk and spits out her vegetables. I shall be looking forward to your help."

Sensible baby to refuse so much milk! Thirty-two ounces is the maximum amount of milk for any baby of any age. This amounts to four eight-ounce feedings or five feedings of a little more than six ounces. When five feedings are given, some water and sugar are added to the formula. The following routine is suitable for four daytime feedings.

Six a.m.—Eight ounces of formula.
Nine a.m.—Strained juice of one orange.
Ten a.m.—Two to four table-spoonfuls of cereal with part of milk from bottle and rest to drink.
Two p.m.—Egg yolk if baby can take it, vegetables, and eight-ounce bottle. Yolk may be hard cooked and sieved over the strained vegetables. Try different varieties of vegetables and if baby still refuses them, use vegetable soup, which most babies like.
Four ounces of soup with bread crumbs, the egg yolk, and four ounces of milk are sufficient for this meal. Six p.m.—Cereal and formula as at 10 a.m.

EVAPORATED MILK FORMULAS

A young mother wishes an evaporated milk formula for a baby four months old. She failed to give me baby's present weight. Ordinarily a baby of four months weighs thirteen and a half pounds and the formula for a baby of that age and weight would be thirteen ounces of evaporated milk, seventeen ounces of boiled water, and one and one-half ounces of corn syrup. Put this into five bottles and feed at 6, 10, 2, 6, and 10 p.m. at night. Will you not send for my leaflet, "Evaporated Milk Formulas?"

To-morrow: "Tempery" Baby Is Result of Mother's Handling."

"The Sealed Trunk"

By HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

Copyright

Except for a telegram, purporting to come from Florabel in Denver, which she had flippantly early that morning and dispatched to herself, she had nothing to show anyone as an indication that she had a friend in the world—and the telegram was not much good since if you looked at it closely you saw that it had not come from Denver at all.

She couldn't have done it, of course, she had not had plenty of money, and, likely enough, not then if the hotel people had not been accustomed to her paying the bills. She paid everybody in cash, that morning, and when this was done she had a little over $300 left, fifteen $20 bills and a few small ones.

The papers her father had tried to tell her something about had always been kept in a big leather hat trunk that must have been her mother's. She opened it and looked in with the hope of seeing whether her uncle's address was there, but as the trunk was nearly full she decided against going through it. She did not much want to, anyway. She took it, as it was, along with her own small trunk in a taxi to a convenient railway station. It had not mattered much which station except that it had to be one that had a train that went to Denver.

The very next day she found a job and met Babe Jennings. The job was at the News, where Florabel had told her they took girls without experience in the stenographic department and trained them, themselves. If you were good you had a chance to be promoted to be private stenographer or even secretary one of these days.

The only technical untruth Rhoda told the employment manager was that her name was Rhoda White. Her acquaintance with Babe had progressed slowly at first, and it was not until she had been working for the paper six months that the older girl approached her with a proposal that they live together. Babe was excited about an ad she had taken, of a studio for rent cheap; unbelievably cheap, $75 a month. It was really a whole apartment, two bedrooms and a kitchenette, beside the studio itself. Her scheme was that they get two other girls and that the four of them should keep house in it, getting, that is, their own breakfast and supper. The other two girls were dancers, members of the corps du ballet of the opera.

They taught her to dance—the other girls had a photograph—and it became a passion with her. She would dance with anybody, who could dance well, in a perfect oblivion of dignity. She liked her job and was not long getting promoted to be special stenographer to one of the younger men on the executive staff. The only impediment in her whole scheme of life, was the little tremor of fear she felt, every now and then, that it was too good to last.

There was no real threat was there, in Martin Forbes's imaginary discoveries? She did not know any one named Lewis nor anyone who could be spoken of as J. E. O. The only person who could be advertising for her was her uncle. For all she knew he might have been doing it for years; off and on ever since she had disappeared. None of the girls knew her story, and they would not give her away if they did. The two dancers were away just now on tour with the opera, so she and Babe had the whole studio to themselves. She would not risk asking ing Babe any questions, though, about Martin. How well, she wondered, did Babe know him? The thing to do now was to go to bed, and to be sound asleep before she came home.

But she was only half undressed up in one of the little bedrooms that had been partitioned off the loft when she heard the click of Babe's key in the studio door. She listened and felt her skin pringle as she thought she recognized the voice of the man who was urging Babe to let him come in for a smoke. Babe was firm about it and sent him away.

Rhoda put on her bathrobe and slippers and came slithering down into the studio.

"Who was that who brought you home?" she asked.

"You ought to know, dearie," Babe told her. "He's your friend, not mine. When he found out I lived with you I could not push him off. He brought me some of his rumaboot, but it was John Alden stuff I was doing all the time, and I knew it."

"Was it Max Lewis?" Rhoda asked.

"None other, darling," said Babe.

"Did he forget you had two of them on, tonight?"

There was a silence for a moment after that. When Babe spoke again it was in a different manner.

"He asked me one queer thing about you, Red. He asked if your real name wasn't Rhoda McFarland."

CHAPTER III

Martin Forbes told himself firmly as he went to bed that night that he had had his lesson. Rhoda had treated him not as a friend but as a reporter trying to run down a story. It must be pretty good story if she was so afraid he would get it. All right, by golly, he would be a reporter, and the first thing tomorrow morning he would go after that story and nail it down. That maneuver he had been so proud of at the time—getting rid of Babe Jennings and Max Lewis by introducing them to each other—appeared now as likely to have been a downright idiotic blunder. Babe and Rhoda might inhabit very different spiritual worlds, but was it not likely that if Babe knew her well enough to tell him that she was interested in him, and would not get away with it, she would also know the crude material facts about her—where she lived, where she worked, and so on—which were all that Max Lewis was interested in? And would not Babe spill anything she knew to anybody who was interested in finding it out? Why the devil had not he thought of that last night?

Well, it was probably too late to repair the error now. He had to get hold of Babe, though, at the earliest possible moment. The more he thought about the possibilities of his blunder the worse they seemed. Next morning he dressed, boiled his breakfast and was waiting at the foot of the elevated stairs a good quarter of an hour before Babe could be expected to appear.

By the time he had finished his second cigarette he felt as if he had been standing there for hours, as if everybody that came along wondered what he was doing there. And then, so suddenly, she came. He blinked and shake his head to make sure that his imagination was not deceiving him, he saw not Babe, but Rhoda herself coming down the stairs. What would she do when she saw him? Toward her head and walk scornfully by without speaking at all? Or pause to make some other blighting aspersion on his good faith in having tried to help her?

She did not do either of those things. Her face lighted up at the sight of him, and when she came within reach she held out her hand to him.

"This is an awfully nice way for the day to begin," she said. "I'm sorry I called you a reporter last night."

"Oh, one," he told her.

"Oh, I know you are, but you weren't being one last night. I don't know why I said that. I suppose because I have red hair."

"This is turning out a much better day than I thought it could," he observed.

served. "I wish I'd known last night this was going to happen. How did it happen? Do you often come down these stairs about this time? Have you got a job near here?"

"The door's about fifty feet away," she told him. "I've worked for The News for two years."

"Look here," he demanded, when he had digested this fact. "Did you know who I was all along—last night, I mean?"

"I thought it might be you. I wasn't sure, though, till Babe called you 'Marty'."

"Honest?"

"Honest."

She answered him quite simply, not seeming surprised at his pressing so minute a point. He did not quite know himself why it was so important, but it was.

"Well," he said, "we've got a lot of lost time to make up for. If I agree not to talk about anything you don't want to talk about, will you have dinner with me to-night?"

"Yes," she said, "but I'll tell you what I'd rather do if you'd just as leave. I'd rather you came to supper at the studio. Give me a pencil and a piece of newspaper, and I'll write down the address."

He would have asked her what sort of studio it was if she hadn't glanced at the rumaboot, but he had no paper and pencil and exclaimed, "There comes Babe! It must be getting late."

Babe sang out a rather knowing "Well, to the two of them, but even if it was late, come on unburiedly."

Rhoda called back over the intervening heads, "Martin's coming to supper with us to-night," and then with no more vanished into the entrance to the building.

The implication he had perceived in that last remark of Rhoda's disturbed him so much that he forgot to be polite.

"Look here," he said to Babe as she came up, "did that bird Lewis that introduced me to you find out where Rhoda lived from you?"

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

When we go to market for fruits and vegetables a combination of accurate knowledge and good luck is called for. Every huckster and grocer arranges his wares to look their best and it is only the shabby shopper who discovers the blemish if there be one.

There are certain conditions and qualities pertaining to some seasonal fruits and vegetables which the experienced housewife should recognize. Pineapples, strawberries and cherries are most plentiful during June and July. So the rabbit gentleman said characteristic which will help the market to make good purchases.

Pineapples present little difficulty because they have few imperfections. Over-ripeness would be washed for but it is easy to detect. Over-ripe pines are soft and frequently have black spots. The black spots indicate "black rot" which becomes troublesome with warm weather. This usually starts at the base of the fruit and is quite apparent.

SELECT CLEAN BERRIES

In marketing for strawberries watch for bright, clear color, firm, well-shaped berries with long green leafy tops. If the berries are soft and the boxes should be well filled, whether they be pint or quart sizes. If a quart weighs less than a pound, the berries are probably not so good.

Decay and over-ripeness are the commonest faults with cherries. The over-ripe cherry cannot be detected on the retailer's stand but it can easily be picked out at home for wormy cherries float in water and sound ones do not. While these are not destructive of all cherry decays, cherries should always be kept in a cold place.

CHOOSE SMOOTH BEANS

The seasonal vegetables are peas and string beans. While these are obtained throughout the year they are most plentiful and cheapest during June.

What are "string beans" to us mean several varieties to the market man, but no matter whether they are green or yellow, they should be clean, vivid and smooth. Crispness is desirable, but a slightly wilted bean can be freshened in cold water providing the other qualities are good. The beans should be unnoticeable in the pods. Even a slight bulge indicates pods that will be tough and stringy.

Peas should be a clear green color with well filled, firm pods. When the pods are light colored and rough it is a sure sign the vegetable is too old and the peas will be tough and hard.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb, cereal cooked with chopped figs, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Casserole of apring vegetables, brown bread and cottage cheese sandwiches, apple sauce, soft ginger cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—English mutton chops, scalloped potatoes, carrot julienne, salad of cucumbers and celery in lime jelly, pineapple charlotte, milk, coffee.

Uncle Wiggily Plays Ball

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Sitting in his hollow stump bungalow one day, Uncle Wiggily Longears heard joyful shouts and laughter in the fields nearby.

"Is the Bob Cat chasing anyone, Baby Bunty?" asked Mr. Longears of the little orphan rabbit.

"Why, no. What makes you think so?" Bunty asked.

"Because I hear such a noise of shouting," said the bunny who was hopped over toward the window.

"That's just Buster, Custer, Duster and some of the other animal boys playing ball," Bunty answered.

"Oh, ho!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I must go watch them."

It was a bright, sunny afternoon and the animal boys, coming home from school, had started a little ball game in the vacant lots near the woods where Uncle Wiggily's bungalow was built.

"Hey, Dad, want a game?" asked Buster, as he saw his rabbit father hopping toward first base.

"I am going to play ball!"

"Or you can be catcher," blessed Bill Wagtail, the goat boy, who was back of home plate. "Jackie stings the balls in too hard for me," he added, pointing one ear where the ball had hit it.

"Thank you, boys, but I think I had better not play ball to-day," said Uncle Wiggily, looking backward toward his bungalow. He saw his wife and Nurse Jane watching him from a window.

"What's the matter, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Jackie. "Don't you want to play ball because you have a sore paw?"

"No, that isn't the reason," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. "I'll just sit here and watch you boys play ball. So the rabbit gentleman sat down on a toadstool near first base and watched the animal boys and have fun."

Now the real reason Uncle Wiggily didn't join in the ball game was that he knew his wife didn't want him to. Neither did Nurse Jane. The animal ladies thought Uncle Wiggily was too old to play ball.

"But I am not," said Mr. Longears. "I am as spry as a cat. I have been watching the boys and I'm going to play ball as well as any of them and I'm going to! But I'll have to go off and play ball by myself, I guess. Then Nurse Jane and my wife won't know it."

After the boys' ball game was over, Uncle Wiggily hopped home. But he was thinking so much about the chance of having ball fun that, before he knew it, when he was sitting on the porch with his wife and Nurse Jane, all of a sudden he called out:

"I'm going to do it!"

"Do what?" asked Mrs. Longears in surprise. "Do you mean you are going to cut the grass, Wiggily?"

"I am going to play ball!" said the rabbit gentleman, not quite thinking of what he was saying.

"Oh, Wiggily, you are not!" cried his wife.

"Oh, Mr. Longears!" murmured Nurse Jane.

"Oh, I'm so tired of being old and stiff!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I saw what fun the animal boys had playing ball, so I'm going to. And nobody is going to stop me, either!" he added, brave like.

"Very well, Wiggily," said his wife quietly giving Nurse Jane a funny look. "If you have made up your mind to play ball I suppose nothing can stop you. But what are you going to play ball with?"

"With a ball, of course," said the rabbit, wondering what his wife meant by that.

"What else?" asked Mrs. Longears, calm and sarcastic like.

"With my paws, of course," answered Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that, if I were you," said Mrs. Longears sort of as if she didn't care. "You are too old and fat a rabbit gentleman to play ball with your paws as the boys do. Why don't you play nose ball like the trained seals in the circus?"

"You mean knock a ball about with my pink, twinkling nose?" asked Buster's daddy.

"That's it!" said Mr. Longears, smiling at Nurse Jane. "I think it would be very unattractive for an old rabbit gentleman to play ball with his paws, like the boys. But a rabbit playing ball with his nose—"

"That would be very different!" agreed Nurse Jane. "I'll do it!" declared Mr. Longears. "I'll go buy a ball now!"

And if the "as stove doesn't throw the custard pie at the teapot, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's funny game.

HONEYMOON AT ROYAL RANCH

Prince of Wales Lending Canadian Home to London Bride

London, England, June 5.—It is understood that the Prince of Wales has lent his Canadian ranch for part of the honeymoon of Miss Joan Halsey and Mr. George Wood, who were married yesterday at Hemel Hempstead. It was the first time that the ranch has been devoted to such a romantic purpose.

The former Miss Halsey is the elder daughter of Rear-Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, Comptroller to the Prince of Wales.

Mr. Wood, destined to be one of the richest young men in the country, is the grandson and direct heir of Mr. George F. McCorquodale, who possesses a vast fortune and owns some of the largest sporting estates in Scotland.

Mr. McCorquodale is giving his grand-aunt a trip round the world as a wedding present.

Mr. Wood and his bride will go first to Badenloch in Helmsdale—one of the family properties—for a month.

They will leave for Canada on July 12, visiting Quebec, Montreal, and taking ship across the Great Lakes en route to the Prince of Wales' ranch.

Mr. Wood is expected to go to New Zealand and Australia, and are expected back in England in January.

She Got What She Wanted On Washday—by C.A. Voight

LOOK AT MRS. HERRICK'S WASH. IT'S WHITE AS SNOW—YET SHE HAS NO WASHER. I'M GOING TO ASK HER HOW SHE DOES IT, JEAN.

—AND MRS. HERRICK JUST TOLD ME SHE DOESN'T EVEN BOIL THE CLOTHES, RINSO WASHES THEM SO WHITE.

THAT SOUNDS GREAT LET'S BOTH TRY IT NEXT MONDAY.

HOW DO YOU GET YOUR CLOTHES SO WONDERFULLY WHITE, MRS. HERRICK?

IT'S THE SOAP I USE. IT GETS CLOTHES SPOTLESS WITH NO HARD WORK.

BUT I HAVE A WASHER AND MY CLOTHES LOOK DIRTY COMPARED TO YOURS.

NO DOUBT SOAP MAKES A GREAT DIFFERENCE IN WASHERS, TOO. TRY THE KIND I USE—RINSO.

MRS. HERRICK KNEW WHAT SHE WAS TALKING ABOUT, JEAN. I USED RINSO TODAY AND MY WASH IS WHITE AS SNOW.

I USED IT, TOO, FOR THE WASH AND THE DISHES. SUCH GRAND SUDS—AND SO SAFE FOR HANDS.

"Large box goes a long way," says this housewife.

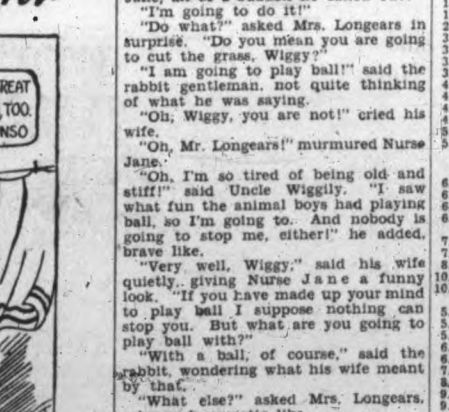

"Rinsol is wonderful for the laundry work because it gets clothes snow-white without scrubbing or boiling. With one big package I did this three weeks' wash:

- 1 bedspread
- 6 bureau scarfs
- 7 sheets
- 3 men's pajamas
- 4 dollies
- 5 pillow cases
- 5 towels
- 3 nightgowns
- 17 face cloths
- 7 tablecloths
- 10 aprons
- 4 men's underwear
- 12 napkins
- 75 handkerchiefs
- 12 dresses

I also did the woodwork in two rooms, the kitchen floor three times, and the dishes after thirteen meals." Mrs. R. Roberts.

Rinsol gives thick suds—even in hardest water. Safe for finest cottons and linens—white or colours. See how much one box of Rinsol will do.

Men Make a Fatal Mistake When They Make Home a Prison; the Man Who Knows That He Is Free to Go Is the One Who Stays and Eats Out of His Wife's Hand

CUMSTANCES, custom and convention have made the wife the family ruler. This is a position that a woman acquires on her wedding day and she holds it ever after by the grace of God and her good tongue. It is her husband and her children who are under her rule and her hands are over them such tyranny as she sees fit.

Perhaps that is the chief thing in the matter with matrimony, why there are so many empty nests and unloved wives, because no man wants to be locked in at night and nobody is crazy about their jailer.

Why a woman should think that being married to a man gives her the right to have him under her rule, is a detail of her personal life, which only she knows, but she does, the more she loves a man, the more she is on him, and the more she dominates him, the more she feels that she is being a model wife.

Apparently women consider that there is some magic in the marriage bond that endows them with natural wisdom and foresight and judgment, and takes away from a man whatever brains and knowledge and experience he may have formerly possessed as a bachelor. At any rate they proceed to act upon that theory and treat their husbands as if they were moronic babes who did not have the intelligence to keep from being run over by automobiles when crossing the street or sense enough to come in out of the rain.

There are plenty of men who, after they are married, are never permitted to indulge a single individual taste or habit again. They are even allowed to eat the kind of food they crave or to wear the clothes they like or have their hair cut the way they prefer.

Wives pick out their suits for them, buy their neckties, tell them how to sugar to put in their coffee tell them how bad the food they have, and all their lives for their stomachs, drag them out to parties if they do not step out, nail them to their firesides if they like to stay put. And all there is to it.

Many a fisherman never wets another line after he is married. Many a man who gives up his game after he takes him a wife, and his wife finds that they are not permitted to keep up their old friendships or to have the slightest say-so around their own homes. They are merely bill-payers.

Not long ago a man said to me: "I'd give a month's salary just to dress some night in my tux and hum around all by my lonesome, bumping old acquaintances and saying 'Hello, Bill' and 'How are you, Mike?' I'll never be allowed to do it without a row and it isn't worth it. I'm too tired after fighting downtown all day to take on another row. But 97 per cent of my life's fizzle can be charged to rundown battles that get that way from living in a groove and being oppressed and oppressed. For how can you have any initiative when you haven't any?"

It is easy to pity the poor husbands whose wives will not grant them more liberty than a dog has on a leash, but the wives who make the fatal mistake are even more to be pitied because they defeat their own ends. In trying to hold their husbands they drive them from them. Locking the door on them they force them to sneak out of the window. By making their homes a prison they make the outside world irresistibly alluring.

For the one great eternal passion of the human heart is for liberty. For men have fought and bled and died. Without that nothing else is worth having, and women can't understand this and that it applies just much to domestic life as it does to political life.

It is this craving for liberty, which his wife denies him, that sets so many men roaming. He wants to be free to put on his hat and go downtown on any evening and now and then without having a scene with tears and reproaches. He does not want to do a thing that is wrong, but he wants to be by himself without having to drag a wife along with him, and do what she wants to do instead of what he wants to do himself. He wants to be free to bring an old friend home to dinner or to go off for a week-end with a bunch of men. He wants to be able to move without hearing the shackles rattle.

But he can't do it. Wife has taken his freedom from him. He can't get out of the house without telling where he is going and what he is going to do and how long he is going to be gone. He can't go off with the men whose wife is afraid he might take cold or get hurt or something. And he is perfectly confident that she knows what is best for him and that would be far happier tied to her apron string than he would be answering the call of the wild and husband gives in and lets her lock him in his cell and hates her for it.

Nine women out of ten who lose their husbands lose them through their bossiness and petty tyranny, and the tragedy of the thing is that it is only the sense of liberty that the man wants. If he knew he was going to stay of his own accord and eat out of her hand. If she were to let the door wide open, he would be content to sit by his own hearthstone.

Conquest of the Air

Exactly 150 years ago to-day a crowd of people came together at Annonay, France, to watch what was destined to be a great event in world history.

Men working on the bag of large balloons of modern times. We may only guess what was in the minds of those who watched on that day in 1783. Most likely, many were thinking that the Montgolfier brothers were out of their wits to suppose that anything could be made to fly in the air.

their invention as the means of taking themselves or anyone else for a ride. What they were doing was to prove that a balloon could be made to rise into the air.

For ten minutes, the balloon remained in the air, going up to a height estimated at 6,000 feet. Then it came to earth, a mile and a half from the starting place.

News of the event spread far and wide over France. Three months later a flight was made at Versailles, in the presence of the French king and his court. In a basket beneath the bag, a duck, a cock and a sheep were placed. The balloon rose about 1,500 feet, and traveled two miles before it sank back to earth. The animals were still alive when found after the flight.

On November 21, 1783, two men made a flight in a balloon built by the Montgolfier brothers. This balloon was seventy-four feet high, and had a diameter of forty-eight feet. It rose about 3,000 feet, and carried the passengers a mile and three-quarters. They passed over the house-tops of Paris and landed in a field.

Since that time, thousands of persons have made balloon flights. In 1859 an American, John Wise, made a journey from St. Louis to Henderson, N.Y., a distance of 1,120 miles. Another record flight was made in 1900, from Paris to a town in Russia, 1,193 miles. In 1914, Hans Berliner took two passengers on a balloon flight from Germany to the Ural mountains in Russia, a journey of 1,800 miles.

Modern balloons are filled with hydrogen or other light-weight gas. (For "History" section of your scrap book.) Several thousand more copies of the "Surprise Leaflet" will be mailed without charge to readers who send me a stamped, return envelope. This leaflet is one of the most popular I have offered. It contains riddles and tells how to perform magic tricks. To-morrow—Gooding.

Fine Sheep Seen At Ganges Exhibition

First Annual Show of Salt Spring Association Is Great Success

Sheep Dog Trials, Shearing and Softball Game Are Some of Features

By The Times Staff Correspondent
Ganges, Salt Spring Island, June 5.—Several hundred visitors from Victoria, Vancouver, and neighboring islands, joined with virtually all local residents on Saturday afternoon to witness the various events connected with the first annual exhibition of the Salt Spring Island Sheep Breeders' Association. Ideal weather favored the occasion and the grounds of the Mahon Hall, where the events were staged, were filled with more than 2,000 persons.

Victorians, in a party organized by the Chamber of Commerce, motored out to Swartz Bay and then crossed to Fulford Harbor by the M. S. Cy Peck. They brought their cars over to the island and motored the ten miles of picturesque road to the Ganges. Vancouver people arrived on special excursion by the S. S. Princess Mary, which also called at several of the islands to pick up additional passengers. The Mary, gay with flags and pennants, lay at Ganges wharf most of the day, leaving at 6 o'clock on her return to the islands and Vancouver.

OPENS SHOW

Capt. M. F. Macintosh, M.P.P. for the islands, officially opened the show. He congratulated the sheep breeders of the island on their splendid exhibition, and mentioned the advantage island breeders have over those on the mainland. They had better food and better climate on Salt Spring, which enabled them to reach the market earlier than their mainland competitors, he said.

Dr. W. R. Gunn, of the Provincial Livestock branch of the Department of Agriculture, who was one of the judges, said that he had attended sheep shows from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and had never seen a better show. Other judging were M. Morton of the Dominion Livestock Commission at Vancouver, and Mrs. A. E. Simmons of Victoria. They were all extremely pleased with the show.

The shearing of sheep by hand and by machine proved unusually interesting.

SHEEP DOG TRIALS

The large crowd keenly enjoyed the sheep dog trials. E. C. Stubbins' dog Ben being awarded first place. A Macfarlane's dog Laddie, from the Colony Farm at Esquimalt, gave a fine exhibition. E. J. Brantford's dog from Musgrave Mountain also gave an exhibition, which was full of thrills for the crowds who lined the field.

AUCTION HELD

An exhibition of the proper method of cutting up lamb was given by M. Johnson, manager of the Hudson's Bay meat department, after which the various cuts were auctioned by Harold Palmer, secretary of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Victoria, who organized the party from that city.

D. H. de Burgh of Prevoist Island gave a short address on the most suitable grasses and pastures, and the best methods of seeding them. Among these he mentioned Tall Fescue, Creeping Bent, Tarrow and Kentish, wild white clover, Chicory and others as being the best for the climate of the Gulf Islands.

Teams from Ganges School and Saanich played a fast game of softball on the grounds, the Saanich team winning.

In the hall the ladies gave exhibitions of spinning and weaving. Some handsome blankets and other wool products were shown.

Much of the success of the show must be given to the following, who formed the energetic committee: Mrs. E. Charlesworth, J. E. Bennett, D. H. de Burgh, C. A. Goodrich (Vesuvius), G. W. Evans (Ganges), H. D. Palmer, W. R. Gunn, W. M. Palmer, John S. Rogers, Henry Ruckle, W. Y. Stewart, N. W. Wilson and D. Wintrop. Constable D. O. Tweedhope of the Provincial Police was the announcer.

Members of the party from Victoria made the Harbor House Hotel their headquarters and motored to Vesuvius Bay. In the party were Mrs. J. C. Newmarch, Judge and Mrs. J. L. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. James Parfitt, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Parfitt, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Parfitt, W. T. Strath, H. D. Palmer, W. R. Gunn, Rev. Bruce Gray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Angus, Miss Doris Angus, Miss E. Macfarlane, J. M. Wood, Clifford Denham, Mr. Harold Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. James Browning, J. N. Findlay, Miss Jean Findlay, Master Sewell Findlay, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Sande, W. Brookman, Jim Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Len Batchelor and Percy E. George.

JUNIOR BAND IN CONCERTS

Kitsilano Group Plans to Compete at Fair in Chicago

Four concerts were given here over the week-end by the Kitsilano Junior Band, which is endeavoring to raise funds to defray expenses of a trip to the Chicago Century of Progress Fair, where the band will compete with others from different parts of the world.

Yesterday evening two recitals were heard in the City Temple after an afternoon performance at the Royal Athletic Park. Saturday night the band played at the City Temple.

The versatility of the young bandmen is well demonstrated in their handling of Sousa's "King Cotton March." Their programs include overtures, grand opera selections, light opera, musical comedy numbers, marches and popular melodies. Solos by individual bandmen lent color to the performances.

FRENCH PRIEST IS CANONIZED

Pope Conducts Solemn Ceremony in St. Peter's; Maniac's Interuption

Associated Press

Vatican City, June 5.—Pope Pius, in a solemn canonization ceremony in St. Peter's yesterday, bestowed the rank of saint on a French priest, Andre Pournet, founder of the orders of "Daughters of the Cross." The states' hood has seven branches in Canada and nine in Argentina.

The ceremony was briefly interrupted by a man authorities described as insane. The canonization was performed in the presence of President de Valera of the Irish Free State and Chancellor Dollfus of Austria.

Canadian branches of the order are located at St. Maurice, St. Malo and St. Adolphe, in Quebec; Winnipeg and St. Louis, Man.; Lafleche and Willow Bunch, Sask.

Twenty-one cardinals, including Cardinal Verdier of Paris, and 100 prelates surrounded the Pope, as he performed one of the most colorful ceremonies of the Roman Catholic Church. Tens of thousands of spectators, many of them Holy Year pilgrims, crowded the huge Basilica.

The address of canonization was briefly interrupted by a man described as insane, who made a speech at the top of his voice. The interruptor harangued the amazed crowd and invited them to gather in the Piazza Colonna this evening, where he said he would explain at length his ideas of life.

The Pope glanced in his direction to time to see the papal gendarmes hustle the man outside the cathedral. The man was handed over to Roman police who said he was mentally unbalanced.

Pope Pius entered St. Peter's in formal procession, borne aloft on a portable throne on the shoulders of twelve attendants, with two additional attendants walking beside him and gently stirring the air with enormous ostrich feather fans. His Holiness passed through cheering and hallooing chief-waving ranks of people held back by wooden barriers.

As soon as he arrived at the high altar, dismounted from the portable throne and took his seat on the fixed papal throne, the canonization began. A cardinal and two prelates approached him, knelt before him and thrice asked him formally to declare himself Andre Pournet a saint. Twice the Pope responded that they all had first to pray for God's assistance. Prayers and the litany of the saints were recited.

When the request was repeated for the third time, the Pope signified for the lofty mitre to be placed on his head and rose. He declared in a loud voice that blessed Andre Pournet he "inscribed in the catalogue of the saints and his memory be celebrated in the universal church every year with pious devotion."

Shortly afterward another historic ceremony took place, still in St. Peter's. As a mark of their gratitude for the Pope's declaration of canonization, three cardinals, following an ancient ritual, offered His Holiness two huge leaves of bread, two little eggs, one containing wine and the other water, three birds each, one containing two doves, the second two pigeons and the third number of small birds of various species, and candles.

This is a revival from the early church, when a priest's congregation presented him with similar objects. The priest took part of the bread and distributed it among the faithful as a communion. The remainder of the bread, wine, water and food were for his own sustenance, in lieu of a salary.

SUSPENDED AND FINED $500

GEORGE EARNSHAW

New York, June 5.—Big George Earnshaw, rated one of the best right-handed pitchers in the major leagues, today stood suspended for "failure to get into condition." Connie Mack, tall leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, said he had suspended Earnshaw for ten days and fined him $500.

"If he gets into shape in the next ten days I will reinstate him," Mack said, intimating at the same time the suspension would be continued otherwise. So far this season Earnshaw has pitched only forty-one innings, winning two games and losing two.

Seven fanned in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader as Russell Van Atta won, 3 to 2, and eleven more whiffed in the second game as Johnny Allen turned in a one-hit masterpiece to win, 6 to 0. The double victory gave the Yankees a lead of four games over the second-place Washington Senators, who had to go thirteen innings to beat Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3.

Chicago White Sox moved into fourth place, taking two games from the St. Louis Browns, 13 to 6 and 10 to 2. Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers divided a pair of low-scoring games. Cleveland took the first, 2 to 1, and dropped the second, 4 to 3.

GIANTS ON TOP
New York Giants, the only National League team to win two games out of a set of four double bills, defeated Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 0 and 5 to 1. Cincinnati Reds knocked St. Louis Cardinals out of the lead by winning the second game, 6 to 2, after dropping the first, 4 to 3.

Pittsburgh Pirates scored seven runs in a ninth-inning uprising to beat Chicago Cubs, 9 to 3, in the opener, but the Cubs evened the score in the second, 9 to 2. An unearned run gave the last-place Phillies a 1 to 0 win over Boston, but the Braves slugged out a 9 to 6 decision in the nightcap.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Brooklyn, N.Y., June 5.—The Dodgers were utterly unable to fathom the offerings of New York Giants' pitcher yesterday and went down to a double defeat, 2 to 0 and 5 to 1, before nearly 40,000 fans. The double win put the Giants into first place.

Harold Schumacher gave only three hits in whitewashing the Dodgers in the first game, while Fred Fitzsimmons allowed only five in the second.

The lone run of the first game was scored in the second inning, was unearned. It resulted after Virgil Davis scored a life on Urban's poor throw to first, while trying to complete a double play. The Philly catcher later scored on a single by Finn.

The Cardinals bunched hits off St. Johnson in the eighth inning for eighth victory, but a former teammate, Paul Derringer, held them in subjection except for one frame in the nightcap as St. Louis, another ex-card, with a perfect game at bat, defeated him in three runs and scored another.

First game— R. H. E.
St. Louis 4 9 1
Cincinnati 2 14 1
Batteries—Walker, Silver, Johnson, Holmes and Wilson; St. Johnson and Lombardi.

Chicago, June 5.—Pittsburgh Pirates came out of their slump in the ninth inning of the first game of a double-header yesterday to defeat Chicago Cubs 9 to 3, but went into reverse in the second contest, losing 9 to 2.

Burleigh Grimes had the Pirates pretty well under control in the opener, until the ninth. Trailing 3 to 2, Pittsburgh then opened up on the old fireballer. He was driven to cover, and Roy Henshaw, who replaced him, was nudged for three hits before Guy Bush was sent in to halt the rally.

Who Will Wear 1933 National Open Crown?

By AL DEMARÉE

Who will win the National Open Golf Championship? This will be played June 8, 9 and 10 at the North Shore Golf Club near Chicago.

Will Sarazen repeat or will Hagen or Runyan? Whoever does will have a tough golf course to score on. There is comparatively little roll at North Shore on account of the sprinkling system. There are 450 permanent sprinkler heads located on the eighteen fairways.

Someone asked if there was not danger of a player's ball frequently coming to rest on a sprinkler head—an unplayable lie? Gene Conley, chairman of the publicity committee, says not. He has figured to his satisfaction that the chance of a player's ball stopping on sprinkler head is only one in 90,000. Figure it out yourself.

FOURSCORE WINNERS
In the Calcutta two-ball foursome played at the Gore Golf Club Sunday, J. S. Gow and O. A. Trickett won, J. Sangster and O. Reister 2 to 1.

Gyro Golfers Win At Qualicum Beach

In the golf competition held for service club teams at Qualicum Beach yesterday the Victoria Gyro Club won the Qualicum Beach Hotel trophy. The winning team was composed of R. L. Challoner, A. B. Christopher and A. D. Straith. Christopher won the prize for the best score with an 81, while Straith's 75 won him the best net award.

With only a 4.17 mile needed to break the world record for the medley relay team, running anchor for the N.Y.A.C. team, was spiked by a teammate as he took the baton. He held a good lead at the start and despite pain and blood gushing from his shoe ran a half mile in 2:03 and three-quarters in 2:13 3-5. Then the handicap proved too much and he slowed down. He collapsed at the finish line.

Manhattan College won the race in 7:31 3-5, over six seconds back of the world mark.

CONSTRUCTION GAINS IN MAY

Toronto, June 5.—A further increase in the number of construction contracts awarded in Canada was recorded for the month of May. These amounted to 1,283 for the Dominion of Canada, as compared with 1,141 for April and 688 for March. The total value of these contracts, as compiled by MacLean Building Reports Limited, was $6,514,100. This is a lower gross value than that of April, which included two large jobs amounting to $3,000,000 out of a total of $8,608,700. There are no particularly large individual jobs registered for May which would indicate a steady increase in volume and activity in all parts of the Dominion.

Ontario leads the provinces with a total of $2,441,800. This is a 20 per cent increase over the April figure of $2,045,100. The number of jobs increased also from 461 to 526. Industrial buildings doubled in number and value.

Quebec had a good total of $2,250,000.

HANDICAP WON BY NANNIE D

Steve Brodie's Filly Captures
Opening Feature at Colwood
Track; Favorites Dominate

Whipping the favorite by a neck in a driving finish, Steve Brodie's three-year-old filly, Nannie D., captured the King's Birthday Handicap, feature of the opening race card at Colwood track Saturday afternoon.
The daughter of By Himself, out of Hircania II, set the pace for the whole distance, but was being overhauled on both sides by the public choice, Plenty Gold, and Tommy Doyle at the finish. Once blanket would have covered the three horses as they plunged across the wire.

Chidley rode the winner and Henson was aboard the favorite, Nannie D. was second choice in the betting and returned $5.50 straight.

FAVORITES WIN

Generally speaking, the favorites held the spotlight as the thoroughbred started the week's cantering on the mile oval. The Soms was the only one out of the money. Silk Train, in the sixth, was beaten a length and a half by May Upset, which registered the longest price of the day at $14.80. Hughes took the riding honors with two winners and a second. Chidley had one first, one second and a third, and Thorogood a winner and a second with his only mounts.

The first event, over the five furlong route, went to Nellie Basil, owned by J. Lowry. She took a three length decision over Mida Zappa, and the pace maker, Baster Day, was third.

Weaving his way through the bunched field coming up the stretch, J. E. Stevens's Bellatrix, topped the second over the same distance without trouble after breaking slowly. Oregon finished second after leading at the head of the lane, and Clarimonde Hope was third.

SECOND STRAIGHT WIN

Dale Showers hung up his second straight victory by defeating a bunch of western breds in the third. He was rated behind the pace in the early running, but finished well in hand by a length and a half over Jim Rogan. Evelyn May took the show position.

J. H. Ferguson's thirteen-year-old Shortway scored an impressive win in the fourth after riding down the fast-running Honeythistle on the way to the wire. Miss Heywood's mare lasted for place, and Paved Way picked up the third slot for Dr. J. B. Clark.

May Upset galloped three-quarters in 1:14 to win the sixth. This was three-fifths of a second faster than the time she made in the handicap. Dr. Clark's colors were again in the money with only Train, which finished second. Star closed rapidly for the show.

Will Ward cut out all the pace and won the seventh handily. At the same time Copenhaver, Highway showed signs of waking up and finished with a tremendous rush to take second. Miss Ekhorn was third.

RESULTS

Tabulated results follow:
First race—Claimants: three-year-olds and older: five furlongs.
Nellie Basil (11), White, $5.10 $2.75 $2.05
Miss Zappa (11), Chidley, 2.90 2.05

EVERY Boy and Girl wants a C.C.M.

TAKE a vote on it in your family, Dad... if you dare!

To get on the saddle of a new C.C.M. Bicycle with the feeling "This is mine" is the thrill of a lifetime. And we think Dad will get a thrill, too, in the threefold benefit he gives to his boy or his girl with a bicycle:

- (1) Good, clean, healthy fun.
- (2) Gentle, body-building exercise in the open air and
- (3) Character - building development of a boy's or girl's independence and ability to think.

The value of a healthy-minded playtime environment cannot be measured in dollars, and we think a bicycle develops finer companionships.

A C.C.M. would win any popularity contest among boys and girls from Halifax to Vancouver. It's the first choice for style, finish, easy-running, smoothness and ability to "stand the gaff". There's a lot of EXTRA quality built into a C.C.M. and it shows up in the splendid service a C.C.M. renders year in and year out. HOW DISTANT STAR'S LIGHT BEAM THREW SWITCH TO OPEN CHICAGO FAIR

This drawing shows how light from the distant star Arcturus was trapped at four observatories and used to turn on the lights at Chicago's world fair. Telescopes, trained the beam of starlight on photo-electric cells which converted the light into electrical impulses. These were transmitted to Chicago by wire to turn on the exposition's giant searchlight, shown at the upper left, and the searchlight's rays turned on the lights in the main buildings.

A faint ray of starlight that had been traveling through 240 trillion miles of space at a speed of 186,000 miles a second since it left the distant star during forty years ago turned on the lights that illuminated Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition on its opening.

For this bit of man-made magic by which the light that left the star during Chicago's previous world fair in 1893 was trapped and used to open the 1933 exposition.

Powerful telescopes were trained on the star at four widely-scattered observatories, chosen because of their location to guard against the possibility of failure due to cloudy weather. These were the Harvard observatory at Cambridge, Mass.; the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis.; the University of Illinois observatory at Urbana, and the University of Pittsburgh observatory at Allegheny, Pa.

The faint ray of light picked up by each of these telescopes was magnified by their powerful lenses and the beam trained on a photo-electric cell, or "electric eye," which converted the light into electrical impulses. These impulses were then amplified many times and transmitted by wire to Chicago to throw the switch that turned on the giant searchlight atop the Hall of Science. The great beam of the searchlight then swept the exposition grounds, being directed on the main buildings of the fair. Photo-electric cells on each of these buildings picked up the searchlight's rays, and in turn switched on the lights that illuminate them.

The idea of capturing a beam of light that originated during Chicago's previous world fair and using it to open this one originated with Dr. Edwin B. Frost, former director of the Yerkes observatory. Other noted astronomers quickly joined him in the move.

Arcturus, one of the brightest stars in the northern hemisphere, was known and identified by the ancients and given an important role in Greek mythology. It was selected from among all the other stars because the rays of light which left Arcturus when Chicago was celebrating its first world fair are now just reaching the earth.

NICKEL FALLS
OFF 30 CENTS

Canadian Press
Toronto, June 5.—Toronto Stock Market overcame its nervousness to-day and became so enthusiastic in the late trading that half a dozen new high prices for the day were marked up. Early losses up to a point were turned into gains in many cases of an equal amount. Canadian Nickel, which had been trading at 15 1/2, fell to 15 1/4 at the close. The market was generally quiet, with only a few scattered transactions. The closing prices of the leading stocks were: Canadian Nickel, 15 1/4; International Nickel, 17 1/4; Montreal Power, 37 1/2; Canadian Pacific, 17 1/2; Bell Telephone, 101; Consolidated Smelters, 134.

Wheat Off Fraction
When Late Buying
Erases Early Loss

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, June 5.—Backed by the rest supporting orders of the session, wheat futures prices mounted rapidly in the closing minutes to recover almost all of an early one-cent decline in the Winnipeg Grain Market to-day. The finish was only minor fractions under the previous close. The late buying shook values out of their session-long lethargy, and prices climbed up from the day's bottom points within a few minutes. The finish, 1/4 cent off, July at 34, October 65 1/2, and December 7 cents. "Short" covering near the close was believed the cause of the late reversal, earlier, depressed throughout and with trading sometimes at a standstill, values had been as much as 1 1/2 cents lower.

"NATIVE SON"
CUTS BIG VEIN

Word was received yesterday at the office of the Native Son L.L.D. (N.S.L.), that the crew now working on the property had cut one of the veins running from the Bralorne property into the Native Son ground. This vein measures up to 14 feet in width, with an average width of 8 feet. While assays of this vein had not been completed when word was received, the indications of good values are very encouraging. Further word from the property is being eagerly awaited by the large number of shareholders in this company, as the Native Son Company has been one of the first of the new companies to start active development work in a big way this summer.

"No Longer am I Financially Worried!"

"To-day I am over sixty. Carefree, happy, pottering around my garden, I look back and see a man who was harassed, worried, who opened his morning paper at the financial page in fear and trembling. That man was myself. But now, I never even give the financial columns a thought, let alone look at them. Financial crises are no concern of mine, for I have an income equal to 10 per cent per annum on the capital sum I invested in an Annuity. My income has never been reduced by one cent. It cannot be affected in any way by business conditions, falling interest rates, depressed markets or any turn of events. It is guaranteed to me for life by a company with over $216,000,000—the Canada Life. So now, when men talk to me of financial crises, I shake my head and go and have a look at my roses."

E. W. HEURLEY, Canada Life Assurance Company.

Such is the sense of security experienced by all Canada Life Annuity holders. Some people prefer travel or some other interesting pursuit, rather than gardening. But however you prefer to pass the hours of your autumn days do not allow financial worries to mar the carefree happiness which the possession of an Annuity makes possible. If you also are past middle age, why not take the first step in your release from financial care? The coupon below will bring you by mail, free, without obligation, a copy of an interesting descriptive booklet, "An Income Guaranteed for Life!"

RELIANCE GROUP TO START WORK

The Reliance group in the Bridge River District consists of twenty-two claims. The property is located about eight miles north-east of Pioneer, two to three miles east of the Wayside and Bridge River Consolidated. The Reliance property is approximately the centre of the north-east quarter of this district, and is practically surrounded by mining properties which show every indication of becoming producing mines. This property was worked for anti-monopoly during the war, but was not prospected for gold until the summer of 1932. The old workings, consisting of an open cut (100 feet long, six feet wide and twelve feet deep) were cleaned out and sampled. These averaged $472 a ton. Samples taken from the vein in the tunnel, which varies in width from eighteen inches to thirty-six inches, show values from $8 to $11 a ton. It is reported. Active development work will be rushed. A crew of men is going in about June 10. The company is planning to run a main tunnel about 1,000 feet below the present workings. This will give a stopping distance of 1,300 feet vertical and 4,000 feet on the slope. The practically unbroken hill side affords an excellent site for mining development, tram lines and mill site. Directors of the Reliance Mines are: John R. Sigmore, O. Ferguson, Major Hamilton White, John Redden and Dr. A. McKibbin. Two others will be elected.

C.P.R. EARNINGS

Montreal, June 5.—Earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for the week ended May 21, 1933, were $2,812,000, compared with $2,922,000 in the same period last year, a decrease of $110,000.
